Delegation To Seek State Aid For County Roads

DESIRES TO BE STATED TO BOULAY

Good Roads Federation To Storm Highway Headquarters

3 MAIN ROUTES

County Ready to Pay Its Portion of Total Cost

State aid in improvement of important highways in Allen-co will be petitioned Tuesday at a conference in Columbus of Allen-co Good Roads committee with State Highway Director Boulay.

Representatives from every city, town and township in Allen-co will comprise the delegation in the program for general repair of heavily traveled arteries of travel in the county.

Program of action for financial aid constitutes improvement of the Cairo-Columbus-Grove-rd from the end of the pavement three miles north of Lima to Columbus Grove; repair of the Lima-Spencerville-rd from the edge of the city limit in Lima thru to Spencerville, improvement of the Lincoln Highway from Delphos to Gomer and at other strips within the county where repairs are necessary.

Stress on the highway director by the delegates who will represent Lima, Delphos, Spencerville, Beavertown and other locations in the county tends to center on the improvement of the Lincoln highway as this portion thru Lima and Allen-co of the transcontinental highway is badly in need of repairs, especially between Gomer and Delphos is the highway in bad shape and a detriment to travel.

Out of the county road fund the county will assume its share of financial responsibility providing the state grants sufficient aid to warrant completion of the improvements, members of the Good Roads committee stated Saturday.

PROJECTS NAMED

Improvement of the Cairo-Columbus-Grove-rd is proposed from the end of the pavement north of the State hospital on the West-st thru Cairo to the Putnam-co line, a distance of 10 miles. Completion of this project will complete a road of travel thru Allen-co into Putnam-co. Strip of approximately 10 miles is included in the Lima-Spencerville-rd improvement plan, which proposes repairs from the end of the pavement thru to Spencerville.

Lynn B. Timmerman, president of Lima Automobile club; Senator Berry, Spencerville; Kirby White, of Harrod; L. C. Lauck, Delphos; Arnold B. King, B. A. Gramm and other members of the committee will visit Columbus, leaving here early Tuesday morning.

General improvement of all main highways and secondary roads in Allen-co is the aim of the centralized body working as a unit for general betterment of the county, according to announcement of the committee. Besides the plans to be submitted to State Highway Director Boulay, the body has under consideration the improvement of the Dixie highway from the Erie railroad to the L. E. & W. overhead and the rerouting of Spencerville-rd to escape the grade crossing at Woodlawn-av. Whether this last plan will be submitted to the state official in the proposal for aid on the Lima-Spencerville-rd has not been definitely stated.

PEACE TERMS SOUGHT BY BRAZILIAN REBELS

RIO JANEIRO—The Sao Paulo revolutionists, according to an official bulletin issued by the government Saturday, sent a representative with an offer to come to terms but the chief of the division engaged in putting down the insurrection, refused the offer.

"The spirit of our troops is magnificent," the official bulletin says, "and only unconditional surrender of the insurrectionists will be considered."

COMPIERS IMPROVING

NEW YORK—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who has been confined to his hotel with illness for a week, continued to show improvement Saturday night.

BOILER PLANT IS LEASED BY LIMA CONCERN

Ward Railway Equipment Co. Takes Over Bernhard Works—Increased Industrial and Realty Activity Seen In Events of Past Week

Lease of the Bernhard Boiler Co. plant, S. Shawnee-st. by the Ward Railway Appliance Co. for a period of five years was announced by officials of the latter company Saturday.

Final papers have been signed and the plant will be opened by the appliance company Aug. 1, it was stated. All machinery, buildings and facilities together with approximately 10 acres of land are included in the lease.

Option has been given the company to purchase the property during the five year period and negotiations are already under way to do this. Capital stock of the company was recently increased from $50,000 to $250,000 by unanimous decision of the stockholders.

Announcement of the plans of the railroad appliance company follow closely on the heels of reports that business in general in Lima is on the verge of increasing activity.

For the first time in several weeks signs of extensive new building and an increase in realty transactions were seen. At the same time industrial plants were more optimistic than at any time in the past few weeks.

New industries projected during the week include besides the railway equipment plant the Ohio Steam Shovel Co., which is now being organized by Lima men and which expects to make steam shovels by early fall. Definite plans will be announced later, it was said by incorporators.

Negotiations between the Bernhard Boiler Co. and the Ward Railway Equipment Co. were handled by J. B. Bernhard, president, and M. L. Johnson, secretary of the boiler company, and Joseph T. Ward, president, and O. G. Snyder, secretary of the equipment concern.

The new company was organized for the manufacture of special railway equipment while J. E. Morton was manager of the Lima Board of Commerce and it was largely thru his efforts and recommendations that the company decided to locate in Lima.

While at first only railroad men were included on the board of directors it has been enlarged and a number of local business men will be named, it is said. Announcement of the board will be made later, officials added.

HEAVY WORK

Under present plans the foundry will be the only one in this part of the country that will be equipped to handle heavy locomotive and marine castings, it is said, and a superintendent has been chosen who has had long experience with the American Locomotive Works and the Lima Locomotive Works.

The boiler factory, which has been closed for several months, is said to be remarkably well equipped and fitted for the type of work that will be done. A value of approximately $200,000 has been placed on the property as a going concern by the new company.

Brisk revival in Lima realty circles during the next few weeks is indicated by announcements Saturday of building and improvement projects on which work is just beginning, and which total nearly $50,000.

F. X. Ebner, 626 S. Scott-st., has begun excavating operations on the west side of S. Scott-st., between Eureka and Kibby-sts., for the erection of a $25,000 apartment building.

Red brick is being used in the construction, and Ebner stated Saturday that 20 three-room apartments will be completed.

ROCKWELL MAY ACT AS DAVIS PILOT

McAdoo Manager Ready To Help Put West Virginian Over

LEADERS LINE UP

Foundation Laid for Democratic Campaign In New York Conferences

NEW YORK—(By Associated Press)—Several significant events occurred Saturday to draw the lightning from the charged atmosphere in which John W. Davis has moved since he became the Democratic presidential nominee.

Most important, he reports, was the clear cut statement of William Gibbs McAdoo, who sailed for Europe with his family, that he would "give the Davis-Bryan ticket cordial support" and would take an active part in the campaign upon his return in September.

Rumors that McAdoo contemplated a bolt from the Democratic party, and a campaign for the presidency as an independent candidate thus were definitely spiked. Further evidence of party harmony which Democratic leaders locally hailed with satisfaction, was the report that David Ladd Rockwell, who managed McAdoo's campaign for nomination would not be averse to joining the managerial staff of the Davis campaign.

There also was the positive statement of friends of William Randolph Hearst and Mayor John F. Hylan, that the departures of these two men with their families to California was a health-seeking mission. Reports of a Hearst-Hylan coup, aimed at obstructing Davis' chances in November were absolutely without foundation, said their associates.

CAMPAIGN PLANS

Davis proceeded to lay the foundation for his campaign in a leisurely but thorough manner. He received a few of the most prominent party leaders at his Lenox Valley estate; conferred about selection of a commander-in-chief for his forces, but made no choice; answered a few of the thousands of telegrams of congratulations that have poured upon him; enjoyed a round of golf and a salt water swim with Frank L. Polk, his law partner and counselor, and announced plans for a journey next week at the home of Charles Dana Gibson, on Isleborough Island at Pebble Beach, Calif.

McAdoo Saturday morning sailed on the Homeric for a six weeks' tour of France, Italy and Portugal with Mrs. McAdoo and their two daughters.

The hope of genuine reforms and progress is more likely to be realized at this time than the Democratic can than thru any of its opponents, he said in a prepared statement issued when he reached his suite on the Homeric. "I shall therefore give the Davis-Bryan ticket my cordial support and shall take part in the campaign on my return in September."

"I will watch developments," he said, "I want to know more about Mr. Davis before I form an opinion."

Mayor Hylan conferred with Mayor William E. Dever of Chicago for a short time and Mayor Dever said that they discussed the political situation "in a general way."

The two mayors were also in conference with George Brennan, Illinois Democratic chairman. The New York party departed for the Pacific coast Saturday night.

PEEVES QUEEN

M. Antonesco, Rumanian minister at Paris, has resigned "in disgrace." Queen Marie, so rumor has it, is a bit mad at him. It seems as tho there was to two-fold purpose in the queen's recent visit to the French capital—to raise funds for her army and to put over a play she had written. Both projects failed. Now Antonesco is accused of bad press agenting on one job, and poor diplomacy in the other.

BRANDED PASTOR IS DAZED

Michigan Preacher Unaware Of Letters On His Back

BATTLE CREEK—(By Associated Press)—Rev. Oren Van Loon, Methodist pastor of the community church at Berkley, a Detroit suburb, lies on a hospital cot here Saturday night still dazed from experiences suffered during the eleven days he has been missing from his home and still unaware of the "KKK" branded in letters two inches high between his shoulder blades.

He talked at intervals during the day with his wife, whom he recognized but was unable to recall anything that has happened since he left home with a small black bag in his hand to catch an interurban car for Flint, Mich. The bag, its contents undisturbed, was found beside him when he had collapsed on a street corner Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Van Loon said that her husband had not expressed hostility to the Ku Klux Klan and she was unable to explain why three K's had been seared into his back. Rev. Van Loon, she said, at one time had offered the use of his church as a gathering place for the organization. It was said, however, by friends of the Berkley pastor that he had on occasions denounced the burning of cross.

Police admitted having made no progress in their attempt to trace the pastor's whereabouts since the day of his disappearance. They were not able to account for the three K's on his back. The K's were black letters seared in the flesh, apparently with a special branding iron in one piece. A permanent scar will be left, the opinion of Doctor A. F. King, who attended Rev. Van Loon.

LIMA RISES TO LORAIN'S AID APPEAL

Benefit Concert Monday At Memorial Hall Is Arranged

$7,900.00 SOUGHT

$600,000 Insufficient Is Charge of Business Men of Elyria

Appeal to Lima citizens to respond with financial aid for relief and rehabilitation of the tornado stricken area along Lake Erie, especially Lorain, where intense suffering requires immediate assistance, was sounded Saturday by City Manager C. A. Bingham, Mayor Earl C. Moyer and city commissioners in designating Monday as "Lorain Day."

Quota of $7,900 constitutes Lima and Allen-co's share as designated by Governor V. Donahy in the state-wide campaign to subscribe $600,000 toward alleviating personal suffering of those who lost all worldly goods in the death dealing tornado which swept over Lorain, taking a life toll of 74 persons and causing property damage estimated at millions of dollars.

First organized movement of any civic body toward swelling the relief fund collected by banks thru voluntary subscriptions, is the benefit concert Monday night at Memorial hall under auspices of the Lima Orchestral club and the Kiwanis Harmonic society. All money collected from patrons will be forwarded to the Red Cross relief headquarters at Lorain.

DONATIONS AT BANKS

In response to the appeal made direct to Lima citizens, Mayor George Hoffmann of Lorain, for aid, banks are extending invitations to donors to make their deposits at any time during banking hours. All banks have been designated by city officials to collect subscriptions while only three institutions have been designated by Governor Donahy as depositories. The Old National bank, the City Bank and the Dime Savings bank are the state named depositories.

Quota of $1,100 set for rural sections in Allen-co, outside of Lima, Spencerville, Beavertown, Ellettsville, Elida, Harrod and La-fayette, is declared beyond the reach of farmers, according to a decision reached at a meeting of the Allen-co Farm bureau, Saturday.

Announcement was made Saturday by Don John, of the National Cash Register Co., that a complete program has been arranged for the combination voice and instrumental program in which the Lima Orchestral society will appear in conjunction with the Harmonic society Monday night at Memorial Hall.

Members of the society will meet at 7 p. m. Monday at Trinity Methodist church for a short rehearsal prior to their appearance at the hall at 8:15 p. m. John stated.

The program follows: "Battle—Egyptian"—Lullaby, Part 1, Allegretto, part 2, adagio sostenuto, part 3, moderate.

Lima Orchestral society.

"Lullaby of Life"—Lullaby and "I'm Not Alone"—May—D.

REGISTRATION IS ANNOUNCED

July 25 is Date Set; General Event in October

Lima citizens becoming of age before the November election will have a chance to register in their respective precincts before the August primaries, according to board of election officials who announced Saturday that Friday, July 25, has been designated as registration day.

This registration also provides a chance for those who have transferred from one precinct to another within the city to register in the precinct in which they are living.

For absent voters who were out of the city on the regular registration day arrangements have been made at the board of elections in the Holmes-bldg to register them on August 12, the day of the primaries.

General registration of all voters in the city will be held before the November election, requiring four days. This registration is once every four years, or every presidential year. Days designated in Lima are Oct. 2, Oct. 9, Oct. 16 and 23, election board officials said.

WOULD BE PEACEMAKER IN FAMILY ROW IS SHOT

CLARKSBURG, W. Va.—Claude Wilson was tragically shot here Saturday when he intervened in a family quarrel in the home of Daniel Wolfe, a neighbor, according to police. Wilson was attempting to shield Mrs. Wolfe from the attack of her husband when the latter opened fire on him. Wolfe, an ex-convict, died and Saturday night parties were mourning for him.

The book company representative, after a trial that attracted not only state wide attention, but drew interest from surrounding states, was acquitted.

After a battle had been waged to oust Boggess in order that McCord might be installed as school head, H. J. Churchman, Springfield drugist and minority bloc member of the board, rocked the very foundations of the school structure by an allegation in one of the fighting sessions of the board that he had been offered a bribe of $100 at his store by a man named Dahlmire, representative of the American Book Co. ### LOCAL MAN IS FAVORED IN VACANCY

Present Principal of Central High School Given First Choice

M'CORD SECOND

Springfield Educator Seen As Compromise Candidate By Observers

R. E. Offenbauer, principal of Central High school, is at the present time favored over all other candidates for the superintendency of the Lima public schools. I. F. Judkins, clerk of the board of education, announced Saturday.

The announcement came as the result of a report from Springfield that George J. McCord, recently resigned from the schools there under pressure, was slated for the job here.

Judkins announced that to his knowledge McCord has not filed an application with the board. He may have gotten in touch with Dr. R. A. Buchanan, president of the board, but at the later was out of the city it was impossible to learn definitely regarding the matter.

In asserting that no outside man would have a chance at the job left vacant thru the resignation of Supt. J. E. Collins on last Tuesday evening, Judkins explained the situation created by the vacancy.

OFFENBAUER FIRST

It is the opinion of the majority of the board that Offenbauer should be given first consideration in picking a successor to Collins. To this end Offenbauer has been collecting references, data regarding his training and experience and other information for consideration by the board.

It was indicated by Judkins that if he can show the board that he is fully qualified for the post, in case he should not be employed as superintendent then one of the applicants from outside the city will be considered.

Opposition to Offenbauer has been shown by Ralph Austin and Homer Hughes and the hiring of him has been protested but, Judkins said Saturday, no charges have been brought to show just why he is not considered available by the minority.

General gossip Saturday was the effect that should it be impossible to agree on the hiring of Offenbauer for any reason whatever and especially in case of a deadlock the Springfield man would stand a very good chance of getting the superintendency.

MAY COMPROMISE

While the three majority members of the board are holding out for Offenbauer, it is understood that they are not opposed to McCord and his availability as a compromise candidate is recognized by all five of the board members.

George Moore, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the post of superintendent of schools of Lima, has been superintendent of schools at Springfield for the last seven or eight years. He was to be deposited by the board of education, elected last fall, but resigned before such action could be taken.

Several issues were involved in the election of the school board at Springfield last fall, one of which was the Ku Klux Klan. McCord succeeded Cary Boggess as superintendent of the Springfield schools. Boggess, who had served many years in the board system of that city was investigated in one of the bitterest fights in the history of the city's stormy school career. The matter involved itself into a racial book fight with the indictment of a representative of one of the leading school book publishing houses but alleged attempted bribery of a school board member.

After a battle had been waged to oust Boggess in order that McCord might be installed as school head, H. J. Churchman, Springfield drugist and minority bloc member of the board, rocked the very foundations of the school structure by an allegation in one of the fighting sessions of the board that he had been offered a bribe of $100 at his store by a man named Dahlmire, representative of the American Book Co. ## JUGLAR VEINS OF MANY YOUTHS TORN BY TEETH OF MANIAC

BY CARL D. GROAT

BERLIN—(By United Press)—

A brutal maniac moaning in a jail cell in Hannover, Saturday is accused by police of more than a score of "vampire murders" in what the police say is the most revolting series of crimes ever investigated.

The man is Friedrich Harmaan, who is specifically accused of the murders of 22 boys whom he set on with his teeth, tearing their jugular veins while they slept.

After the murders, the man took the severed bodies of his victims, quartered them and carried them in sacks to the river Seine where he weighted them with stones and threw them into the water.

Harmaan has confessed to many of the crimes.

"Behold me now and have it over with," he told police, as he lay moaning and tossing in his cell. "I don't know why I killed them, but I'm guilty."

Harmaan was questioned at length by police Friday and observed by alienists. All his mad blood lust had disappeared. He lay gibbering and crying, answering "yes," "yes," to all questions asked and grew back in terror when confronted with the clothing of a number of his victims and asked to identify the garments.

Police have dragged the Seine, recovered a number of bags with bones of the murdered victims.

A great crowd gathered around the jail Friday night demanding Harmaan's immediate execution, while the murderer cowered in a corner of his cell.

"Don't let them in," he pleaded to his guards. "I can't stand the way people look at me."

The case has aroused intense interest thruout Germany.

The murderer, according to police, has been committing the revolting crimes over a period of five years.

Harmaan operated a combination meat market and old clothes shop in the poorer section of Hannover and found it comparatively easy to lure many youths into his rooms in the rear of the building. There he waited until they slept and then attacked them savagely with his teeth. He disposed of their clothing by merely adding it to his stock of used apparel.

Mothers of missing boys from all over Germany are flocking to Hannover to view the garments in the belief they may be able to solve the mystery of their sons' disappearance.

Communists have seized on the experiment caused by the case for political propaganda and staged a huge demonstration against the police.

Speakers charged the police with criminal neglect, declaring there has been ample evidence of Harmaan's activities several times during the last five years and that numerous complaints were made against him before the police finally consented to investigate.

A big mass meeting was held and a resolution adopted demanding that Ober, President Noske and the government be held responsible for the case.

So great has become the clamor that a committee of police has requested the state to exonerate them by an investigation of the department.

A mob stormed a house near that of Harmaan early Saturday, following reports that a woman and her two daughters who lived there aided the butcher in luring his victims into the murder den.

Police finally clubbed their way thru the angry crowd and rescued the three women who were locked up for safe keeping.

T. B. CURE FOUND BY DOCTOR

Remarkable Results Shown in Children and Cattle

VACCINE METHOD USED

Years of Study by Frenchman Nears Goal of Reward

PARIS — (Special) — French scientists are hoping the name of Dr. Albert Calmette will be added to the galaxy of immortal scientists by reason of a vaccine for tuberculosis with which he and his collaborators have been experimenting for some years.

Following the modest doctor's own injunctions, and not desiring to raise any false hopes among the world's suffering masses, they are all qualifying what they say and write about the Calmette vaccine with a very big "C."

Calmette, vice director of the Pasteur Institute here, has communicated the results of his experiments to the conservative Academy of Medicine, where his modest remarks have been received with unusual applause.

CATTLE INOCULATED
Briefly, Calmette has worked out a living culture of tubercular bacilli, so attenuated by laboratory processes that it will not give any animal tuberculosis. On the other hand, his experiments lead him to believe that if it is administered to a young animal, up to now immune from tuberculosis, the vaccine will confer upon it complete immunity.

This wonder worker has briefly been named "B. C. G." Calmette began his experiments with animals subject to tuberculosis. He inoculated young calves born of tubercular cattle.

They were unharmed by the vaccine and were thereafter vaccinated once a year. One hundred and twenty-seven underwent the treatment, thanks to the intelligent co-operation of French farmers. All these animals have remained in good health.

The tests seemed to establish the vaccine was inoffensive and efficacious.

Calmette then experimented with anthropoid apes whose reactions to microbes and toxins resemble those of man. The same success attended these trials.

Emboldened by this and with the consent of the parents, he then vaccinated 247 nursing children. All are in good health, altho many of them live in localities where children are liable to tuberculosis.

It is not claimed that the vaccine will cure tuberculosis in adults.

COLLINS' ESTATE TRIAL MONDAY

$250,000 Involved in Case To Break Will

Court fight of Mrs. Dorothy Bradley, nee Collins, great granddaughter of Samuel C. Collins, to obtain a substantial share of the $250,000 Collins' estate will open Monday morning in common pleas court before Judge Fred C. Becker.

Perry C. Collins, son of the decedent who served as sheriff of Allen co during the Civil war, is resisting the efforts of Mrs. Bradley to set aside the will in which the son receives all the estate, with the exception of special bequests.

Decision in favor of Dorothy Collins means that she will obtain $125,000 or more of the estate. In event the court sustains the will she will receive only $50,000, which amount was allotted under a special bequest.

In an initial trial in common pleas court here the jury set aside the will, except as to special bequests, but this decision was reversed in the court of appeals and a new trial ordered.

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

Did you ever know how big cities make the hydrant water fit for you to drink? That's what S. S. S. does to the blood in your own blood.

Increase your Red-Blood-Cells. That's the sure way! S.S.S. builds Blood-Cells; this means strength! Pimples. It makes it fit to circulate. S. S. S. is acknowledged to be one of the most powerful, rapid and effective blood-cleansers known. You don't have to use some new fad treatment that is mere guesswork, you don't have to smear things on your face in a vain effort to get rid of eruptions. Eruptions come from blood impurities and a lack of rich blood-cells. S. S. S. builds new blood-cells. This is why S. S. S. gets out of your system the impurities which cause boils, pimples, blackheads, acne, blotches, eczema, netter, rash. That's why S. S. S. has done such wonderful work in freeing thousands from the scourge of rheumatism. S. S. S. is also a remarkable flesh-builder. That's why underweight people can quickly build up their lost flesh, get back their normal weight, plump cheeks, bright eyes and "pep". S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical.

COUNTIES JOIN IN FIGHT

Suits By Utilities For Tax Rebates Are Contested

COMMITTEE IS SELECTED

Lippincott One Of Five To Defend Actions For Money

Suit against Allen-co by the Western Ohio Railway Co. to prevent the collection of taxes, and suits of other utilities through the state will be fought in federal court by an executive defense committee of attorneys appointed Friday at a general conference of attorneys of 52 counties affected by the actions entered in federal court.

Prosecuting Attorney E. T. Lippincott, of Allen-co, is one of the five members of the defense committee. Others are: Fred W. Warner, Marion; H. E. Pearson, Cleveland; J. B. Shopler, Cincinnati; and Allen G. Agler, Newark. The committee will hold its first meeting at the Allen-co courthouse at 10 a. m. Saturday.

TO FIGHT CASES
The Columbus meeting unanimously adopted a resolution authorizing the five to fight the cases to a finish, declaring in a motion that government of counties and cities is based on taxes of utilities seeking to escape payment, and evasion of such payment would push the burden of taxes on the shoulders of the individual taxpayer.

The Western Ohio Railway Co. in its suit against Harry Hopkins, treasurer of Allen-co, and against Allen-co is based on allegations that assessments on the tax duplicate are exorbitant. They list their property valuation as $1,325,000 and the county assessment valuation as $2,650,000, that amount, or $2,650,000.

None of the pending suits have been assigned for trial. The case of the Western Ohio Railway Co. against Allen-co is pending in Dayton federal court. Other cases are in Cleveland federal court and Columbus federal court.

HOSPITAL IS TO BE EXAMINED

Tuberculosis Survey State-wide in Scope

Lima district tuberculosis hospital will be visited Monday by Dr. H. E. Edwards, a federal physician, who will come here for the purpose of making a complete survey of the institution as one of the moves in the intensive drive against tuberculosis now being started by Ohio health agencies. It has been announced.

Up until last year, efforts of the health agencies in the war against tuberculosis in the state were successful, and a steady decline in the tuberculosis death rate was noticed. Last year, however, 250 deaths were reported as against 1,125 in 1932. Further efforts are being made to lower this amount considerably, and a survey of all the tuberculosis hospitals and dispensaries in Ohio is being made by the National Tuberculosis association at the request of the State Department of Health and the Ohio Tuberculosis association as a move in this direction.

NOTED MEN WILL SPEAK HERE

Minister To Egypt And Lieut. MacReady Are Coming

Two universally known men will address the Lima Rotary and the Lima Kiwanis clubs at their meetings July 21 and 22 respectively. It has been announced.

J. Morton Howell, U. S. minister to Egypt, has been obtained to address the Rotary club on the first-named date. His consent to come here is largely due to the office of William Howell, of the Lima Automobile club, and a Rotarian, who is a nephew of the diplomat. Howell will talk about Egypt and Egyptian customs.

On Tuesday, July 22, Lieutenant J. A. MacReady, of Dayton, who held the record for highest flying, will talk before the Kiwanis club at Hotel Barr on "Transcontinental Flight." MacReady several times has established new height records. He is the aviator who narrowly escaped death several weeks ago when he jumped at night in a parachute from his airplane and almost walked off a cliff in the darkness. He is also the man who, when he established a new height record several years ago, had his eyes temporarily frozen from the intense cold through which he passed.

This Monday the Rotary club will be given a talk by James Watson, a local man. The Kiwanis will be addressed by Rev. Father Plumana, of St. John's church, this city, while Roland H. Rogers, of Wapakoneta, will talk before the Lions club Wednesday. None of the speakers has announced a subject.

Weekly award of $19 toward the support of herself and infant child was granted Viola Rhoda, 131 S. Cole-st., Saturday in her separate maintenance suit filed against Otto J. Rhoda, vice-president of the Rhoda Body Manufacturing Co., McKibben and Jackson-sts.

In her petition, Mrs. Rhoda claims her husband failed to provide for her and her child, William Otto. She alleges that she loaned him $3,000 with which to enter into business and that now he is worth $20,000. They were married in Monroe, Mich., in 1921.

BEE EXPERTS FIND WAY TO RID COMBS OF DESTRUCTIVE DISEASE

Foul Brood Can be Killed by New Process

COST IS STILL VERY HIGH

Method of Treatment is Outlined by Professor

The beekeeper's long cherished dream of removing the greatest hazard in honey production, American foul brood, may soon be realized.

Dr. J. C. Hutzelman's method of treating hives with an alcohol-formalin solution is being developed further by Professor Francis Jager, chief of the division of beekeeping of the Minnesota College of Agriculture here, and J. W. Thompson, instructor in beekeeping.

By sterilizing foul brood combs with a solution composed of 80 per cent grain alcohol and 20 per cent formalin of varying grades, the experimenters have been able to return the infected combs as good as new.

"The big drawback in using the alcohol-formalin solution, however," says Thompson, "is that the price is prohibitive for the ordinary beekeeper."

The bee division of the experiment station, therefore, is experimenting with various proportions of alcohol and formalin in order to find one within the reach of the average beekeeper's pocketbook and without necessitating the red tape now required in getting grain alcohol.

WEAK SOLUTIONS

Disinfectants dissolved in water, Dr. Hutzelman found, could not penetrate the brood nest because it is more or less filled with honey and covered with propolis. Even after the honey is removed by extraction, the brood nest, consisting of beeswax, pollen, dead larva and wood parts covered with propolis, cannot be disinfected with such solutions.

Formaldehyde gas also is valuable, Hutzelman found.

Both laboratory and field tests of his formalin-alcohol treatment of foul brood have been found practicable. Combs infected with American foul brood, it has been found, can be made sterile after being immersed in the solution for 48 hours, and they can then be given back to the bees without fear of recurrence of the disease.

To administer the treatment, the diseased hives are segregated from the rest, the queens are removed and the bees packaged and stored in dark, well ventilated cellars for 48 hours, after which they are returned to the hives.

THE PROCESS

The first step in the sterilization process is to uncap the honey combs and extract the honey. Remove the wax cappings so that the solution can sterilize the interior of the cell.

Honey from these combs may be boiled and stored away for future use as bee feed during the heavy breeding period in the spring.

After the honey has been extracted the combs must be immersed in water for two hours.

CORN SHORTAGE IS FEARED

The combs are then again run thru the extractor.

The purpose of the washings is to remove all honey because it makes the combs sticky, thus interfering with the sterilizing action of the disinfectant. Combs thus treated are ready for the sterilization process.

The combs are placed in large tanks and weighted down to prevent them from floating around. The tanks are filled with the formalin-alcohol solution, covering the combs, and let stand for 48 hours.

After two days the liquid is drawn off, the combs are placed in extractors to remove as much as possible of the liquid, and after a week of airing the combs may be returned to the bees.

BABY BEEFEEDING IS GIVEN THORO TESTING

The following results of baby beef feeding trials, running 224 days, were reported at the fourth annual cattle feeders' day held recently at the University of Minnesota Farm, St. Paul:

One—Corn and cob meal proved superior grain for fattening baby beefs.

Two—Purchase and use of linseed meal was profitable.

Three—If silage is fed to baby beefs a protein concentrate should be included in the ration.

Four—Addition of oats to the ration proved unprofitable.

Five—The self-feeder may be used to advantage if a full feed of grain is to be fed. It saves labor.

Six—As a rule, it is most profitable to feed baby beefs until they are well finished before marketing them.

WASH BUTTER WELL

Pains should be taken to remove as much buttermilk from the butter as possible. The butter should be washed after the butter milk is drawn off, the churn revolved eight or ten times with the water, the water drained and washing repeated. Thus the undesirable buttermilk flavor will be avoided.

SHORTAGE OF ARSENIC

Greater use of arsenic in the fight against the boll weevil among cotton growers has produced a shortage of this insecticide and higher prices for the rest of the country. Chemists say they can make better profits from calcium arsenate, for cotton fields, than lead arsenate.

CORN SHORTAGE IS FEARED

Yield This Year Will be Only One Half of Normal

Allen-co is faced with a serious shortage of corn as the yield this year will be only approximately one-half the normal yield, H. J. Ridge, county farm agent, said Saturday.

Farmers in the county usually plant 40,000 acres of corn, with an average 10-year yield of 40 bushels to the acre. This year the acreage has been reduced to 10 to 15 percent, as only 35,000 acres have been planted, Ridge said. At the present time farmers estimate that the yield will be about 60 percent normal, or 25 bushels to the acre, which will mean slightly more than 850,000 bushels as compared with 1,600,000 bushels normally.

This situation, coming on top of the small holdover of old corn, will mean a serious shortage in the county, Ridge asserted, and will cause a jump in prices of practically all crops. The surplus, of which we have been boasting for the last few years, will automatically be wiped out. Continued bad farming weather will mean a real shortage of some foods, Ridge further said.

Condition of the corn crop in this county is similar to that of the whole state and other states in this part of the country, according to reports brought in to Ridge. The U. S. Bureau of Crop Estimates gives out the information at this time that the normal corn yield of three billion bushels this year be reduced more than one-half billions of bushels.

Altho the corn crop will be poor, wheat, oats, hay and sugar beets will all run nearly the same, Ridge said, but none will go beyond its normal crop.

The total acreage in the county this year is 100,000, the farm agent said.

POULTRY PARASITES

If internal parasites infest the brooder house, move it to a new place 50 or 100 feet away. Continue the chicks in this house for a day or two and they will readily accept their new quarters.

PROUD MAMMA!

Lady, white Leghorn pullet of the H. Clark farm at Cherryland, Calif., is strutting proudly as the result of her recent achievement. An egg she laid was 8 1/4 inches in long circumference, 7 1/2 inches in short circumference and weighed 6 1/4 ounces. Just for contrast the same day an unknown chicken on the farm laid the smallest perfect egg, length 1 1/2 inches, width 2 1/2 inch and weight 82 grams. Photos show Lady and a comparison of the egg.

TAKE CARE OF HORSES

Horses should be treated like humans. Provide a barrel of water on the field for drinking. Let the horses rest and cool off at noon and at night before eating. Feed one-fourth the day's hay allowance in the morning, another fourth at noon and the rest at night. Wash their necks each day with cold water containing a small amount of vinegar.

QUARANTINES LISTED

The quarantine against the foot and mouth diseases in California has been lifted from practically the entire area. No cases of the disease have occurred outside California. Flareups of the disease are to be expected, but the U. S. department of agriculture has its forces ready to quell any outbreak.

RAIN KILLS BUGS

Mexican Bean Beetle is New Pest Here, However

Allen-co farmers have nothing to fear from chinch bugs this season, says H. J. Ridge, county extension agent.

The bugs are present in small numbers in various parts of the county, he says. They may be found at this time in wheat and barley in the form of small pink nymphs at the base of the plants.

Reason given is that the wet spring and summer has been unfavorable for their rapid development and spread.

Altho the chinch bug is rare in the county, the Mexican bean beetle is likely to become common and it may force the people of Allen-co to change their diet, Ridge says. Pork and beans may become a rare dish unless something can be done to control the rapid spread of the beetle to this county from Southern Ohio, where it is now working its ravages.

This is a new insect pest in this section. It is almost certain to become a serious pest of garden beans and will call for applications of high-grade calcium arsenate in combination with hydrated lime as a spray or dust. Specimens of insects attacking garden beans should be mailed or brought to the county agent at Room 326, American Bank Bldg., for identification.

WARM WEATHER BOOSTS EGG PRODUCTION HERE

Egg production in Allen-co is increasing with the warm weather, the report of the Allen-co Farm Bureau shows.

Eighteen flocks being recorded in the county, totalling nearly 3,500 hens, averaged approximately 55 eggs per hen for the eight months from November 1, 1923, to July 1, 1924, an average of slightly more than 10 eggs per hen per month. During June the average number was 15 eggs per hen, with on flock averaging more than 20 eggs to each hen, and several others having 19 eggs average per hen.

HOW FARMERS PROFITED

Farmers generally made money on corn, cotton and potatoes last year, and lost on wheat and oats, reports the United States Department of Agriculture.

According to those who reported, wheat on 7,552 farms cost $1.24 a bushel and sold for 99 cents. Corn on 11,238 farms cost 68 cents a bushel and sold for 81 cents. Oats on 8,481 farms cost 52 cents a bushel and sold for 49 cents.

Cotton on 407 farms with yields of between 100 and 140 pounds of lint per acre had an average cost of 22 cents a pound and sold for 30 cents a pound.

Potato growers in various parts of the country showed profits of from $1.42 to $56.23 an acre.

ALLEN-CO FARM BUREAU TO BE AT DELPHOS FAIR

The Ohio State University Agricultural Extension Service will assist County Farm Agent H. J. Ridge in putting on an Allen-co exhibit at the Delphos Tri-county Fair September 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13, according to a letter received recently by Art O. Wulfoord, Delphos, chairman of the exhibit committee, from H. O. Rameover, director.

The board of directors of the Allen-co Farm Bureau decided at its last meeting to put on an exhibit, the character of which has not yet been determined.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO AID IN TURKEY RAISING

The decline of turkey-raising in this country has aroused the United States government to an effort toward reviving this enterprise.

The department of agriculture has issued a new bulletin on the subject in which farmers are shown how to make turkey-raising profitable. The causes for the decline, the authorities say, have been:

1. More work in rearing young turkeys than other classes of poultry.
2. Prevalence of blackhead.
3. Need for wide ranging areas.
4. No help or advice from investigators.

But it is said turkey-raising is profitable, particularly where conditions are good and proper management is undertaken. The department bulletin tells how this can be accomplished.

GRASSHOPPER "FEED"

Poison bran mash is an effective way of destroying grasshoppers. For five acres mix 20 pounds of bran one pound of white arsenic, two quarts of sirup, three oranges and three and a half gallons of water and sow broadcast over the infested area.

BEWARE COCKLE BURS

Green cockle bur plants are poisonous. They should be eliminated from the vicinity of the pasture. All animals need in greens is about 1 1/2 pounds to every 100 pounds of live weight.

CURE FOR "PINK EYE"

Flies spread keratitis, or "pink eye," among cattle. To prevent blindness from this disease, the diseased animals should be quarantined and their eyes washed with a 3 per cent solution of boric acid or a 2 per cent solution of nitrate of silver.

THAT WILL REVOLUTIONIZE THEIR COOKING METHODS

Until the "LORAIN" Oven Heat Regulator came women had to spend long hours in the kitchen cooking. Foods had to be stirred. Water had to be added, and all watched carefully. Even then there were many disappointments. They had to guess at oven heat. This made "lucky" and "unlucky" days.

The result was that oftentimes the most skillful mixing went for naught simply because the oven temperature was not right. There was a bad baking even though the woman stood over the stove all the time.

MARDI GRAS IS NOW READY

Business Men Complete Arrangements For Gala Event

CITY TO AID COMMITTEE

Parades, Athletic Events, Dancing, Included in Program

Arrangements have been practically completed for the big Mardi Gras and Jubilee, which is to be staged on Labor Day, Monday, September 1. R. B. Dunn, chairman of the publicity committee, announced late Saturday.

Included in the program are parades of bands, and of military and civic organizations in uniform, athletic contests and tournaments on Main-st and at Fawcett Park, aerial circuses, and in the evening park plan dancing on the new asphalt of the Public Square.

City Manager C. A. Bingham has assured the committee the fullest cooperation of the city in the event, which is being authorized by business men of the city. The Y. M. C. A. has also been asked to co-operate with the Labor Day athletic program usually staged by that organization.

The complete program, arrangements for which are now being made, follows:

COMPLETE PROGRAM

Morning—Baseball games.

Afternoon—Parade of bands, including floats; parade of military and civic organizations in uniform; athletic events, including relay races, bag races, potato races, high and broad jumping, and other events that can be staged on Main-st, with prizes offered in each contest.

Evening—Dancing on the Public Square, preceded by a grand parade of hundreds of people arrayed in masquerade attire, with prizes offered.

TO ADVERTISE EVENT

Members of the committee have decided to take necessary steps to thoroughly advertise the event in each and every town within a 40-mile radius of Lima.

Arrangements are being made for an automobile tour with bands and announcers, to cover this territory during the week preceding the affair.

Assurance has been given both the city and the committee in charge of the planned jubilation by George Walcher, paying contractor that the street will be thrown open to traffic prior to Sept. 1.

RADIUM USED

CONTINENTAL — Mrs. T. J. Walls, who for some months has been in ill health, is recovering at St. Rita's hospital, Lima, from an operation to which she recently was subjected. Radium treatment now is being used in the hopes of restoring her to normal health.

ABE MARTIN On Show Window Dollin'

HER BEARIN' CARRIES INDEPENDENCE

When th' average gran'mother, gits t' lookin' back she can't help comparin' th' long, tedious, uneventful days of her girlhood with th' pleasures an' skylarkin' o' t'day. She has nothin' t' look back on but an occasional buggy ride or th' ole wide apart dancin' of her time — her weddin' t' a feller with a heavy mustache an' th' colorless years that followed — days o' no bathtubs, days o' top shoes an' cotton stockin's, lots o' petticoats, an' a full head o' hair that fell t' th' waistline. Even th' modern mother o' fifty must sigh when her daughter struts out limp an' willowy, an' evenly cropped, for an evnin' of alternate dancin' an' motorin'.

"Let th' poor child enjoy herself, fer she'll be married soon enough," she says. Our girls are growin' up an' broadenin' out too fast. We no longer see th' meekness that used t' lurk under th' long lashes o' Miss Fourteen. Th' natural sweetness, too, seems t' have been replaced by somethin' counterfit. Th' Ben Davis flush that used t' leap t' her face at th' slightest slip o' th' tongue is off th' job. Th' girl o' t'day is interestin', but not girlish. There's somethin' about her that makes us feel that we couldn't support her in th' style she'd like to live.

We like t' be around her, but we wouldn't want her. Instead o' th' ole lustre her eyes sparkle with a challenge—a sort o' "how much are you makin' an' where are you workin'?" In her home her bearin' carries an independence that makes a feller feel like he wuz meetin' a great actress. Th' girl o' t'day affects th' style an' manners o' one grown callous in th' whirl o' pleasure and jazz music. But after all is said an' done there's lots t' admire in th' new girl's pluck and dash—her effort t' be independent an' self-sustainin' and keep out o' dish-water. We love t' see her bustlin' off t' work, an' we love t' see her behind th' counter, or peckin' away at a typewriter. We love t' see her powder her nose an' doll her lips up, an' we love t' see her on her way home after th' nerve rackin' worries o' th' day. How glad her folks must be when she gits safely home, an' how glad her paw must be that she's workin'. However, we do regret th' passin' o' th' ole indescribable somethin' in a girl in her teens that used t' make us stutter an' tremble in her presence.

LAW VIOLATORS TO LECTURE

Criminals to Address Newly Formed California Society

LOS ANGELES — (By Associated Press) — Organization of the Southern California Academy of Criminology is announced here by Chief of Police August Vollmer and Dr. E. C. Moore, president of the University of California, Southern Branch, after many weeks of preparation and discussion in which scientists, educators and policemen collaborated with bootleggers, burglars and other more or less notorious members of the underworld.

The purpose of the academy is the "scientific complication of community opinion on the cause and conditions of crime and the best methods of crime prevention." The membership included appellate court judges, university professors, county law enforcement officers and police officials. Only men and women of recognized ability in the field of criminology and sociology will be admitted into the organization, it was stated.

One of the methods to be utilized in gaining first-hand knowledge of crime and criminals will be a series of lectures by law violators, and by leaders of such alleged anti-government organizations as the Industrial Workers of the World and the Communists.

CELINA PLAYS LIMA TODAY WITH STRENGTHENED TEAM

Some Interesting and Well Played Games Furnished Plenty of Sport In Industrial

HECKLER'S HUSTLERS PLAY LIMAITES TODAY

Lee Heckler, manager of the Celina Ohio-Indiana league team, is one of those persistent sports who is an honor to the national pastime. It was to Heckler, more, perhaps than to any other manager in the organization, that made the league possible, who worked unceasingly for its success. In speaking of the Celina team, he points to the fact that they have been up against some hard breaks, and with all the characteristics of a "never say die" determination, he writes to the Lima News that he and his team will be on hand to give Lima one of the hardest games of the season. The Celina outfit are just as persistent and just as full of fight for the pennant and the cup as any team in the league whether they are on top or on the bottom.

He announces a new pitcher—Heuser the navy boy—who according to Heckler has everything, and he comes confident that he can win his game. "He is the outstanding pitcher of the league," says Heckler. "Celina fans will find it out before the end of the game. This is one of the additions to Celina team since they lost the last game. The backstop is McComb, certainly one of the "peppiest" catchers that ever wore a mask. Heckler himself will play first, and he is an old leaguer, knows the game from start to finish. Besides being a fine first baseman and a hard hitter, Landis and Karsh will play second and short respectively. Mary is a third baseman, and is the class of the league at that position. Reynolds, Snider and Ripp in the field will be found to be as classy as any other outfield in Ohio-Indiana circuit. And this is the team, whom Heckler is banking on, and believes wholeheartedly will win the pennant.

RACE GETTING CLOSER

As the race stands before this game, played by Bryan in the lead by a single game, Angola being the runner up. Lima is about two games and a half from Bryan. It will be seen from this that there is a whole lot of responsibility resting on this game. If Angola lose, the race will be considerably space between the leaders and the local team. Again, since the advent of Paulding, who plays Wapakoneta today, they have won both games they have played; one each from Bryan and Angola. Taking the place of Ottawa, who had not won a game, stands fifth in the race; with three lost and two won. Should the Paulding team win it will put them up with the leaders. All the time the different teams are strengthening, and at any time considered that there are but five games difference between the eighth and the first place. It is surely any team's pennant so far. DIG BILL WILL PITCH
Big Bill Westbay, who has been pitching for Celina for several seasons past, will be in the box for Lima against his old teammates. It is the belief that he can win from Celina. There is a belief among ball players that a discarded pitcher is lucky against the team he has beaten. There is probably more truth in this than in the fact that he knows the weaknesses of the batters, better than any stranger could, and that is the secret, and another thing he is a strong hitter, because he is out for revenge. Manager Halloran believes that Westbay is strong enough to hold the Celina hitters, and at the same time Celina will be on their toes to try to beat him. The result will be a game where the desire to win is stronger than it possibly could be under ordinary circumstances. The game will be called at 2:45. Joe Goodrich will be umpire in chief.

The batting order for Lima will be Costello, cf; Galbergh, 2b; Wee, ss; Egan, rf; Sykes, 1b; Malloy, 3b; Ripp, cf; Catton, c; Westbay, p. For Celina: Heckler, 1b; Landis, 2b; Murray, 3b; Karsh, ss; Reynolds, rf; Snider, cf; Ripp, p.

YANKS GET PLAYERS

NEW YORK—The New York Yankees today announced the purchase of pitcher Al Mamaux and outfielder Joe Horan from the Reading team of the International league. Horan had been one of the leading International league hitters this season. Mamaux, who formerly pitched with Brooklyn and Pittsburgh, will be used as a relief pitcher. The deal was for cash, but it was said the Yankees would send a pitcher to Reading later in the season. The new players will report here Sunday.

RECORD OF LIMA TEAM

The following will be valuable to followers of the Limaites in so far as showing the batting strength of the team, since its first official game. It will be seen that Lima is the logical leader with the stick, while Galbergh is second with a percentage of .333 in five games. It will be noted that the combined batting of the team is .295, but this is somewhat misleading for the reason that Herrine, who batted .200 and Catton with .271 in two games, as well as Bible, who had an even .500 in one game, have not played enough games to get a line on the respective batting strength, but taking the nine regular players, and they figure a combined strength of .265.5, which is nearer the correct ratio than the last figures.

Yanks Beat Browns; Hold Lead As Senators Win and Lose With Spoke's Indians

COBB'S TIGERS FIGHT CLOSER TO TOP PLACE

Cleveland is playing good ball these days, and so is Washington, but the Senators lost and won in the struggle with Cleveland and thereby fell back in the American league struggle, mainly because the Yanks who have not been playing at all as it was predicted they would, had what is proven a set-up against the St. Louis Browns. This team did make a pretense of getting up with the leaders once during the season, but at this stage of the game they couldn't play mumble-peg. All this goes to show the see-saw fight for the pennant. Boston played like a house afire, then dropped into the faint-hearted.

St. Louis did the same, but it was spasmodic. It does not, however, as the Senators will bear watching.

The fact that a couple of teams are going back is very pronounced, says the Yank manager, and he further stated that "Hoyt, pitcher of the Yanks, is a young man, but he is a veteran in the point of pitching service." So it is true that predictions, under the Yanks' strength with their material they will not win the pennant is true. All these things considered is good and sufficient cause to watch the Cobb team, from the city of Detroit, Mich.

WASHINGTON—Washington and Cleveland broke even in today's game, the latter taking the first two, 7 to 1, while the home club won the second 9 to 2. Poor support for Zachary from the outfield in the second game.

MAJOR MAGNATES INVEST $250,000 IN FOUR STARS WHO PROVE LEMONS

BY BILLY EVANS
"It's the climate"
That is the way the folks out west explain many of the phenomena of their great country.

Baseball magnates are wondering if the climate might not work the other way relative to some of the star players of that section.

During the past two years several major league club owners have been badly jolted in their dealings with players hailing from the far west.

For instance—$50,000 for Third Baseman Sammie Hale, $50,000 for Jimmy O'Connell in real money.

The manager of the Giants figured O'Connell would win a place in the outfield and gave the club a batting punch.

Most of the time since joining the Giants O'Connell has done bench duty.

The Chicago White Sox paid a reputed price of $100,000 for Third Baseman Bill Kamm.

In the field Kamm has lived up to all advance notices, but hasn't done so well at the bat. Recently at his own request he was taken out of the game and given a few days' rest.

A year ago Connie Mack paid in the neighborhood of $50,000 for Third Baseman Sammie Hale.

While Hale had previously been tried by Detroit and sent back Mack was confident he would add much strength to the Athletics.

Allowing for his fielding faults, the leader of the A's was confident he would supply a batting punch to his club.

Hale slumped at bat. Last year Hale, who had batted around .350 in the Coast league, slumped to .228 with the Mackmen. This year when he failed to do even as well, he was benched in favor of Riccarda.

Probably the biggest disappointment of Mack's entire baseball career, was the showing of Outfielder Paul Strand, recently sent to the Toledo club of the American Association. Strand was a $50,000 investment.

Last year with Salt Lake in the Pacific Coast league, Strand led that organization in hitting with the remarkable average of .394 for 194 games.

Strand, in amassing that average, made 325 hits, including 43 home runs, 13 triples and 66 doubles. He batted in 187 runs.

Surely Strand would give my club a batting punch, thought Mack. With the Athletics, he hit only a little better than .200.

They do say that the high altitude of Salt Lake City, where Strand played, plus the short fences, helped greatly in his 1923 Coast League batting spree.

It's the climate, may be a proper explanation of the failure of some of the highly touted coast batting stars to come through.

Four major league owners have spent a quarter of a million dollars for Kamm, O'Connell, Hale and Strand, and as yet haven't had much of a run for their money.

Other leading batters: Allen Indianapolis .361; Christensen, Indianapolis .359; Shannon Louisville .346; Smith, Minneapolis .346; Brooks, Columbus .346; Russell, Columbus .345; Maguire, Toledo .337; Bell, Milwaukee .335.

off a flock of hits before Dau- bert returned to the game and the substitute first sacker of the Reds therefore figures among the first five with 845.

Alto Fournier of Brooklyn has been swinging a mean club in long distance hitting, he has sagged in general average. Fournier has connected with 20 homers, while Williams of Philadelphia and Hornsby are tied for second honors with nine apiece.

Carey of Pittsburgh has been setting a sensational pace in base stealing, leading with twenty with Grantham of Chicago second with seventeen.

Other leading batters: Gowdy New York .346; Young, New York .345; Roush, Cincinnati .345; Fournier, Brooklyn .337; Grishy, Chicago .335; Grantham, Chicago .326; Frisch, New York .325.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION
The race for premier batting honors of the American Association has developed into a three-cornered scrap involving Brief of Kansas City and Dessen and Neun of St. Paul. Brief at present is leading the third man by four points. He is batting .345; Neun .343 and Dessen with .331.

Haas of St. Paul furnished the sensation of the home run clouters, going up from six to ten within a week. Bob Russell of Columbus added one and leads with fourteen. He is closely pursued by Smith of Louisville, who has compiled a dozen. Haas is now tied with Brief who also added one to his total.

Neun, in addition to having looked after his batting average, has added to stolen bases for a

"BIB" FALK IN FRONT OF SELECT SWAT KINGS

CHICAGO—(Associated Press)—A sensational drive that produced fourteen hits in seven games rushed "Bib" Falk, outfielder with the Chicago White Sox, to the batting leadership of the American league with an average of .372.

Falk was fifth in the hitting a week ago, with an average of .345. Altho his hitting efforts were confined to spaces within fences, five of his safe blows were two baggers. He averaged two hits a game for the last week and is showing no inclination to relinquish the lead.

Babe Ruth is clinging to second place with an average of .365, and Jameson of Cleveland third with .363. The idle Boone of Boston is up among the pace makers with .351, followed by Cobb of Detroit in fifth place with .345.

Goslin of Washington and Sheely of Chicago have been doing some telling work with their bats and Harry Hellmann of the Tigers, who set the pace almost since the start of the season, is getting no worse.

Ruth added two home runs to his collection, bringing it up to twenty-two. He is in no apparent danger of being overtaken as he is eight ahead of Ken Williams of St. Louis and Hauser of Philadelphia.

Collins of Chicago has not much competition on the bases, the White Sox captain having pilfered 21, the figures including games of last Wednesday.

Other leading batters: Goslin, Washington .344; Sheely, Chicago .338; Hellmann, Detroit .337; Prothro, Washington .332; Mostil, Chicago .332; Meusel, New York .331; Collins, Boston .331.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
The hitting in the National league has been consistent, if not sensational. The leaders remain undisturbed with Hornsby of St. Louis showing the way with .392.

Wheat of Brooklyn batting second with .379; and Snyder of the Giants third with .354. Kelly also of the Giants is fourth with .351.

Bressler of Cincinnati grabbed Chicago down with five hits in the first game of the series while two Cub pitchers were hammered by the New York Giants for 20 safe blows.

Kelly pounded out two home runs, while Mueller, Snyder, Wilson and Hartnett gave one apiece. Score: New York 10, 0, 0, 22—11 20 0; Chicago 0, 0, 0, 0—6 11 1.

PAAVO NUREMI WINS GREAT OLYMPIC RACE

OLYMPIC STADIUM, COLOMBES, France—Striding to the most thrilling victory of his career under the most trying conditions any runner ever faced, Paavo Nuremi, Finland's super-man of the track, led his team to a double triumph in the Olympic cross-country championship today, which witnessed the tragic collapse of more than half of the two score starters under a terrific heat that parched the grueling 10,000 metre course.

Greater even than his preceding capture of two finals the same afternoon, last Thursday, was Nuremi's achievement today for the Finnish.

clown proved his stamina as well as his speed where his rivals faltered under the pace and fell like leaves by the roadside in probably the most spectacular Olympic race ever witnessed.

Even Harold Osborne, a great Decathlon victory for America and the creation of two new world records the first when the flashing quartet of American sprinters covered the 400 metre relay in 1:15 seconds, and the second when A. W. Winterm, the Australian Kangaroo, bettered the thirteen year old hop, stand and jump record by 3-16ths of an inch—were eclipsed by the dramatic struggle of the distance runners against the terrific odds.

Along the course that Nuremi raced practically unchallenged to victory they began to go down before the half way mark was reached. Along the first to fall was Elvin. While the gallant Swede who started off in the lead, only to drop, a victim to sunstroke.

Nuremi came under the stadium portal apparently very strong, to finish in front of his stout-hearted countryman Ritola, which was more than 500 metres behind. Many of the others were able to reach the enclosure gates, but never crossed the finish line.

Andia, a Spanish runner, sprawled face downward in sight of the grand stand just as he struggled inside, while Delques, the French star, brought a moan from his countrymen when, after tottering half way around the track, he fell in a heap in front of the official tribune.

In sight of the time. Only fifteen of the original thirty nine starters, and only three of the eight teams finished.

Finland with Nuremi and Ritola finishing first and second defeated the United States by a margin of 11 points to 14 with France third. One of the Finnish contingent, Lehmatainen, stepped and started off the track three times in a day before he finally crossed in twelfth position.

OLYMPIC STADIUM, COLOMBES, France—(Associated Press)—The United States athletic team has won the Olympic games, the victories of Harold Osborne, Elmer A. G. and Emerson Norton, Georgetown, who took first and second places in the final of the decathlon, making it impossible for them to be overtaken on the point score but their Finnish rivals still have a chance to tie or even to win the battle for the greatest number of first places.

With the United States assured of fifteen points in the Decathlon then the unofficial figures place Osborne and Norton one, two and bringing the total points to 202, Finland cannot hope to overtake the United States, even should she win every event of the remaining six, in which she has qualified.

Finland, however, has failed to place a team either in the 400 or the 800 meter relay, and the Americans have a splendid chance to increase their lead in these.

With regard to first places, the score as between these two countries now stands, United States nine wins, Finland eight. Should Finland win the 10,000 meter walk, the marathon and the discus throw, and the United States carry both relays, the countries would stand equal at eleven.

STATE AUTO CLUBS OUTLINE YEAR'S PROGRAM

MAJOR POLICIES DISCUSSED

Highway Plans Are Laid at Cedar Point Meeting

JUSTICES OF PEACE HIT

Grade Crossing Elimination Also Under Consideration

With the most comprehensive program of legislative activities in their history, planned at the recent annual convention at Cedar Point, the 56 automobile clubs of Ohio have begun a campaign to crystallize the opinions of their members on the various problems of legislation affecting almost every phase of motoring.

The first step in this campaign, as announced Saturday by Fred H. Caley, executive president of the Ohio Automobile Association, was the preparation of a statement setting forth the main reasons and outlining the general principles by which the efforts of organized automobile owners will be guided.

This statement deals with every phase of highway financing and improvement, traffic regulations, automobile taxation, traffic safety, licensing of automobiles and drivers, and other important topics of great significance in the development of motor transportation.

Consideration of these questions was based on many facts, including the present status of the state highway system, the condition of various types of roads, the relation of maintenance costs to original construction expenditures, the adequacy of the roads in the light of present and future demands, the plans and policies for extending the hand-out road system, the present financial resources for road improvement, and the probable financial needs of the future.

Only also announced the following recommendations of other clubs adopted at the O. S. A. A. convention:

YEARS PROGRAM

The state highway program should be continued, with the emphasis on the improvement of the main trunk lines and the elimination of grade crossings. The program should be continued, with the emphasis on the improvement of the main trunk lines and the elimination of grade crossings.

municipalities who are operating a road system solely for revenue. The officers of future of the state and counties should be established.

A law should be enacted requiring all applications for a license to be accompanied by an affidavit that the applicant is not a member of a political party and by a bill of sale or other documentary evidence of ownership.

SAFEGUARD LIVES. State, county, and local authorities must safeguard the life and property of the motoring public by maintaining highways, bridges, and other structures in good condition.

Grade crossings should be eliminated as far as possible. The program should be continued, with the emphasis on the improvement of the main trunk lines and the elimination of grade crossings.

Dodge Plan Of Betterment Is Business Help

It is quite evident from the commands of buyers, says D. D. Jones, manager of the D. D. Jones Co., local Dodge Brothers dealers, that the public appreciates the significance of Dodge Brothers' policy of making constant improvements in their motor cars instead of changing models every year.

Newspapers and bulletin boards everywhere are reminding the people this month that this policy continues to prevail and that they may buy Dodge Brothers cars without fear of seeing a new and entirely different model put on the market soon after they take possession of the present type car.

"Coming just at this time," says Jones, "when many manufacturers are preparing to issue new models in keeping with their annual custom, this advertisement is having a striking effect. It serves as a wholesome reassurance to prospective buyers. They dislike the idea of buying a car today and finding a month or so later that it is an obsolete model. And it is only natural that they should. The depreciation loss is out of proportion for a few months' use. Moreover, most people like to be up-to-date in their motor equipment. And if they wish to follow their desire in this respect they must accept this sharp depreciation loss."

Chrysler Will Be Distributed By Local Firm

The newly organized Shawnee Motor Sales Corp., 324 W. Market-st., has secured the franchise for the distribution of the Chrysler Six in Lima, and surrounding territory, according to an announcement made Saturday which comes as no surprise to those acquainted with automotive conditions, as it has been well known for some months that a number of representative dealers were bidding for the distributorship of this car, which has created a sensation throughout the country.

The Shawnee Motor Sales Corporation is an entirely new organization but it is stated that several well known Lima people are financially interested in it. The active management will fall to M. C. Newton and A. N. Abend, both of whom are men of long experience in automobile trade. Newton was at one time purchasing agent for the Garford Company and has been engaged in the industry for the past 15 years. Abend has for 10 years been associated with the organization which now builds the Chrysler, and it was undoubtedly through his connection with the company that the Chrysler franchise was awarded to the Shawnee organization.

The Chrysler car was introduced to the public about six months ago at the time of the New York Automobile Show. In its first six months of production more than 10,000 cars were produced. This is a record in the industry, no car ever having reached that figure in the first half year of its life. The company did a cash volume of business in the same period of $15,000,000.

"In opening the doors of the Shawnee Motor Sales Corp. for business, we are not going to depend upon this remarkable motor car to bring us business," says Manager Newton. "We are out to give the best service Lima motorists have ever received. We are here with the desire to be of genuine value to this community. Service will be one way by which we expect to make our presence known and felt."

Chandler Open Car Designed For Hot Days

A paradox in the automobile industry is the fact that the greatly increased popularity of the closed car has actually brought about marked improvements in the open models, say the manufacturers of the Chandler motor cars. This seeming contradiction is easily explained.

In the days when the closed car was the exception and open models the rule, the latter were designed as all-purpose cars. They were for use the year around, thru all seasons, for city and country use, for business and pleasure.

The touring car of today, however, now that it serves to a much less extent the demands for an all-year, all purpose car, is designed for the open road. A Chandler open car is thus particularly adapted for touring. Among its special features is its large cooling capacity, enabling it to cover unusually long distances without replenishing the water supply. Good riding for the driver and passengers also has been attained by the Pike's Peak motor's unique exhaust arrangement, by which the hot gases are led first to the front of the motor, then down and to the rear, far below the floor boards. Drivers who have felt floor boards become unbearably hot because of their proximity to the exhaust pipe will appreciate the comfort of this innovation.

The Chandler Pike's Peak motor, with its surplus power, and the traffic transmission, which has been equipped with a change-speed control, have naturally increased the pleasures of touring to a marked degree.

TRAFFIC INCREASES. Freight hauled over the British highways has increased from 150 to 200 per cent since the war, according to a road survey near Sheffield reported in the British Motor Transport. Seven thoroughfares were studied, supporting over 10,000 tons of traffic daily, and sixteen between 5,000 and 10,000 tons.

No car like it!

42 horsepower! 50 miles and more an hour—hour after hour—without overheating—without loss of power—without engine repair—without carbon cleaning!

Many authorities believe this to be the outstanding motor car today.

Judge for yourself whether you want these unusual merits, not possessed by any poppet-valve car.

It is the most powerful car ever built of equal motor displacement and car weight.

It has a longer engine life—with greater power and greater economy than poppet-valve engines can have.

It is geared—not to a spurt speed of 70 miles an hour—but to average 50 miles and more per hour, hour after hour, for as long as you want to ride that way.

And at the end of a long sustained high speed, your motor will be cooler, will need less water than any similar sized poppet-valve engine—will need no repair, no tinkering with weakened springs and unseated valves.

In fact its power curve will still be climbing up while the power of a poppet valve car is dropping off.

And that is at the beginning. At 15,000 miles, this car will be more powerful, smoother, more even, if that is possible, than when new. No poppet-valve car at any price can offer this tremendous advantage.

Furthermore, while its power is increasing, its operating cost is cut in two, for this car is entirely free from those engine repairs which make up 50% of the upkeep cost of practically all poppet-valve cars. It has no cams—no springs—to get out of order.

This lack of motor depreciation partly explains the unusually high resale value of the Willys-Knight. Owners often ask to have their old motors retained in new cars. And 50,000 miles without a cent's worth of engine repairs is an ordinary experience among Willys-Knight owners.

You steer it without conscious effort. Women frequently tell us it is the easiest car they ever steered. No car is more lavishly equipped with Timken steering bearings.

Its getaway is quick and sure. You are never embarrassed in traffic.

You can never appreciate the great superiority of the Willys-Knight until you yourself drive it.

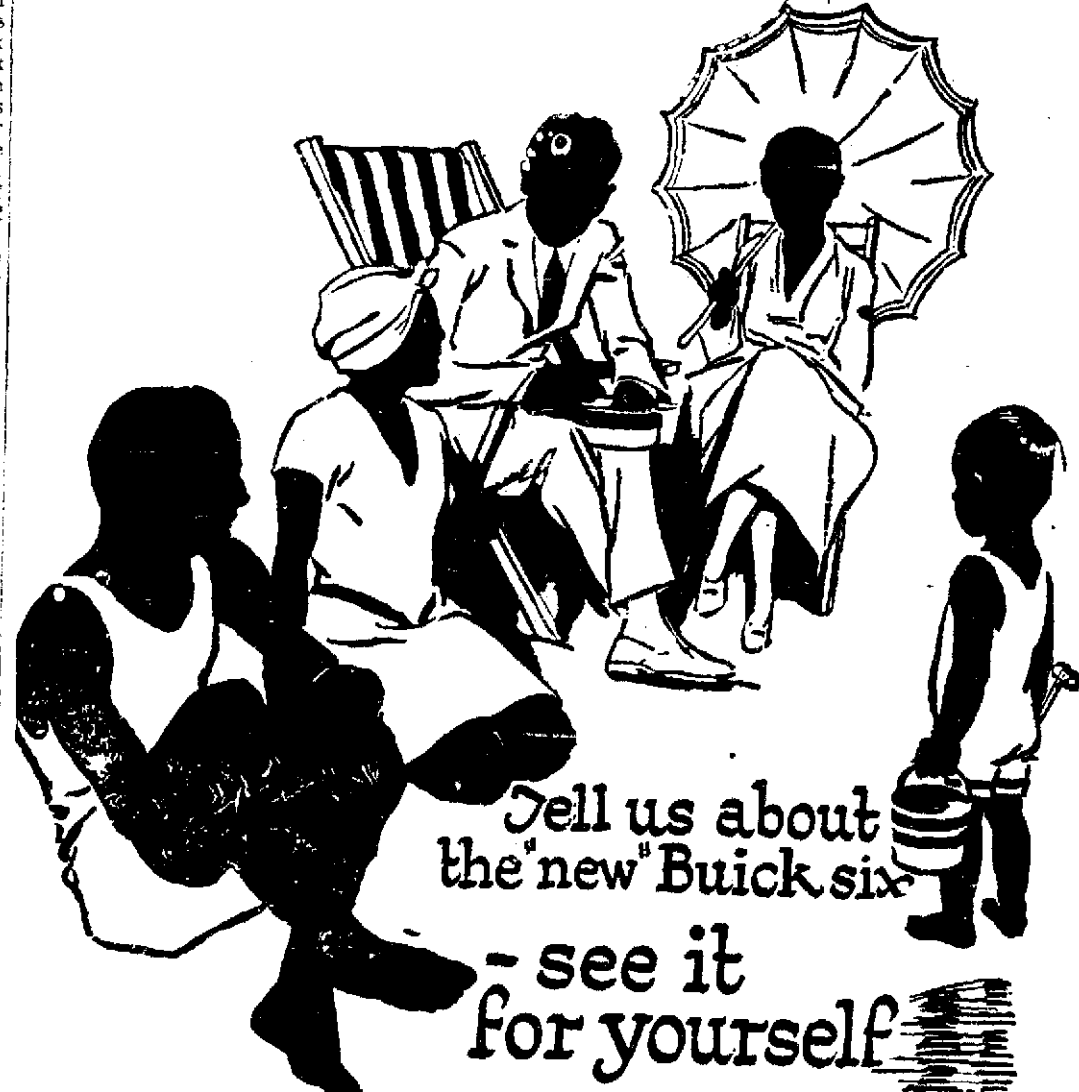

And you can never know the full meaning of motor car economy until you have owned a Willys-Knight for a few years.

Sales increased 238% last year.

Taking the Nation by Storm—

One-Shot Lubrication System

WHEN you come in to see the 1925 Cleveland Six—you are going to find something real to look at!

A totally new car, of course. Longer, stronger, handsomer, and more powerful—a beauty in every sense of the word!

But that isn't all. You are going to see the biggest convenience feature ever offered the motorist—a patented lubrication system that does away with the greasy, grimy task of oiling and greasing the car by hand!

Takes 2 Seconds

You will never know what convenience means until you see the One-Shot Lubrication System. Think of driving a car on which you never use a grease gun or oil can—on which squeaks and rattles and prematurely worn parts are literally unknown.

A plunger projects through the floor board. When you step on it, 23 vital parts of the car are lubricated simultaneously.

No wonder the 1925 Cleveland Six is taking the nation by storm! It's the easiest car in the world to take care of—and, in addition, it offers qualities of performance, beauty, stamina and economy never before available in any car of moderate price!

Mileage Motor

This truly marvelous six is powered by a new and larger motor. Get behind the wheel and get a thrill.

You would never believe that a motor so smooth and silent could be so powerful. Speed? More than you ever want to use! Acceleration? From 5 to 25 m. p. h. in less than 7 seconds! Hills? No car built will ever pass you!

Balloon Tires

Comfort, too! The comfort that only genuine, supersonic balloon tires can provide. All models come equipped with them at no extra cost. And if you prefer

4-Wheel Brakes

—these are offered as optional equipment at a slight additional charge.

CALIFORNIA IS CALLING

Eastern Tourists Are Migrating To Western Country

SAN FRANCISCO—(Special)—California is beckoning eastern tourists.

And thousands are heeding the call.

For of all the states, California boasts of being one of the finest for tourists and camping. And its sons point to these advantages:

Three thousand miles of improved highways.

One hundred places of scenic and historic interest.

Signs galore to aid strangers along the road.

And the much-advertised, highly touted California sunshine.

Many of the motor camps in California are maintained by the cities and are free. The tourist camp outside Sacramento is considered one of the finest in the country.

Last year more than 200,000 tourists from other states put up at California's camps.

According to the California State Automobile Association, it takes a tourist a month to "see" the state. He can take roads that open to him the splendors of mountain, valley, desert and sea.

California has spent $73,000,000 for these roads and will have spent $144,000,000 when the entire system is completed.

Along these roads are 3800 service stations, but there are many more garage and curb stations that bring the total to about 6600.

NEW KINDS OF AUTO LAWS

PROVIDENCE R. I.—

Rhode Island promises to introduce to the country a few innovations in auto legislation.

A bill is pending in the legislature here requiring photos of auto owners or drivers to be attached to license cards.

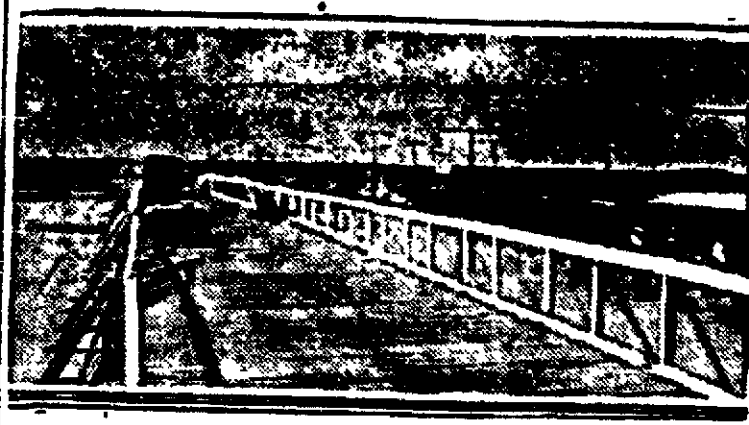

Another bill forbids passing another vehicle to the left, at intersections, bridges, sharp curves, or on steep hills.

A driver is forbidden to leave a line of vehicles to pass others ahead, if he has to pass more than three autos to do so.

UNIQUE MOTOR ROAD

Beginning of the motor highway to lead across the Florida Keys from Key West to the mainland.

KEY WEST, Fla.—(Special)—The Dixie Highway is coming to this island, 132 miles out at sea.

Over a chain of keys, consisting of beautiful coral islets, across ocean liner lanes, sometimes out of sight of land, the most phenomenal road in America will take its course.

It will almost parallel the Overseas Railway, which is still considered one of the most wonderful feats American engineers have accomplished.

The road will lead from the Florida mainland directly out across the Florida Keys to Key West. Work has already been begun with the construction of the Key Largo bridge across the channel between Key Largo and the mainland.

Final approval of construction of this highway has come from the war department. This covers the bridging the navigable channel between Key Largo and the mainland.

Last fall Key West voted $300,000 in bonds toward this enterprise and Dade county, on the mainland, is expected to contribute at least $100,000 more for its share of the undertaking.

The road will cross over water up to 30 feet deep, and gaps between the isles will be as long as seven miles. The trip will afford a wonderful panorama of vivid waters and changing colors. The shoals dazzle with every hue of the rainbow, reflecting the green and brown sea weed, the pink coral bottom and schools of brilliantly colored fish.

Many Workers Owe Good Jobs To Oldsmobile

Nearly 130,000 persons living in more than 2000 cities and towns in this country obtain their livelihood from the manufacture, sales and servicing of Oldsmobile, according to reports from the factory.

The actual number of those employed at the factory in Lansing, Michigan, the number of distributors and dealers and their employees is 18,905, and it is estimated that each worker represents a family of five, the U. S. government average per family.

During the busy periods of the year there are approximately 5,000 persons employed at the Oldsmobile Motor Works factory. Scattered throughout the country are 725 distributors and their employees and a total of 12,505 dealers and employees, making a total of 13,230 persons who devote their time to the distribution and servicing of Oldsmobiles.

This averages about seven persons to each of the 2,000 or more cities and towns where Oldsmobile is represented in this country.

The wide distribution of dealers and service stations has been carefully worked out to cover every section of each of the 48 states so that Oldsmobile owners can be assured of service anywhere they may be traveling.

The tabulation of all those engaged in the handling of Oldsmobiles gives a clear idea of the magnitude of the automobile industry in this country and what its prosperity means to millions of citizens of the United States.

STANDARD HAND CRANKS

Instead of a special hand crank for every make of car, we may soon have only two or three standard sizes for all cars. S. F. Evelyn of the engine division, Society of Automotive Engineers, is at work devising standard sizes for cranks.

A farmhand of Galesburg, Ill., mortgaged his trousers, shoes, cap and watch recently in trying to complete a purchase for a used car. Used cars are reported to be selling as low as $5 down with the rest in mortgages.

New Buick Has Many Features Of Excellence

Attention of automobile circles is centered today on the new Buick, a six-cylinder car on an entirely new chassis, and featuring eight new models. Mechanically it is essentially the same as the present Buick car, and is capable of a speed of seventy miles per hour.

The new Six is designated the "Standard Six" and has a wheel base of 114 3/8 inches, a valve-in-head engine similar to the engine now in use in the other models, four-wheel brakes, and low-pressure tires.

The chassis shows advanced ideas in numerous new details of simplicity and accessibility. Among the body models are a five-passenger touring, the same with an enclosed body and heater; a two-passenger roadster; the same with a closed top and heater; a five-passenger double-service sedan; a two-passenger double-service coupe; a five-passenger sedan, and a four-passenger coupe. The permanent tops which can be obtained with the open models are of glass and are fitted tightly to the tonneau.

The engine is a valve-in-head type with automatic lubrication throughout and with the cylinder head removable. The clutch and transmission form integral parts of the engine which is suspended at three points from the main frame. The crank shaft is a drop-forging, extra heavy and balanced with four large bearings. The pistons and connecting rods are properly weighted and carefully manufactured.

Large valves are operated by noiseless, adjustable push rods thru rocker arms which are automatically lubricated from the engine. This motor produces fifty actual brake horsepower.

AUTOMOBILES ARE HELP TO SELLING OF HOMES

A close relationship between home building and the use of motor vehicles is indicated in the comparison of residential building figures compiled by the F. W. Dodge Co. and production figures of motor vehicles tabulated by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

The curves of increase in both types of investment are virtually parallel for the past three years. A similar comparison is found in the increase in building and loan association assets which have climbed from $1,898,344,346 in 1919 to $2,342,536,953 in 1923.

The figures for motor vehicles (wholesale value) in the same periods were $1,885,112,546, increasing to $2,004,952,716.

COLLEGE STUDENTS ARE BUYERS OF USED AUTOS

College students form the largest and best group of prospects for used automobiles in the country, according to a survey just made. Figures obtained from a widely separated list of dealers in college cities showed that 42 students purchased used cars to every 12 that bought new automobiles. One used car dealer in a college town reported the sale of 100 used cars to students during 1923.

Women Delight In Overland's Special Coupe

Unusual interest among feminine motorists has greeted Overland's announcement of its new two-passenger Overland Coupe. Not only is it a light car embodying the manifold advantages of the entire Overland line, but it combines with these a driving comfort and convenience almost incredible in a car of these dimensions, say the manufacturers.

Nowadays, with the male members of the family requiring the use of the car during the day, there is a definite need for a second car in a good many homes, a car that can be used for shopping and visiting by the women folks of the home.

The new coupe has proved itself to be ideally adapted for this purpose. Ventilating windshield, dura window regulator, rear window curtains are little touches that appeal to feminine taste. Its ease of handling in congested traffic areas because of the exceptionally large steering spindles and bearings are decided factors in this new car intended for feminine use. The interior of the body is finished in durable, long grain Spanish leather upholstery. The seat cushion is over 45 inches wide, being ample to accommodate three medium sized people. There are 15 inches between steering wheel and cushion, rendering it convenient for the car to be entered easily from either side.

A roomy rear deck provides ample space for packages, which is an additional convenience for milady's shopping. Its hinged cover is provided with a lock and is protected against dust and leaks.

ASBESTOS FOR BRAKES

Annual consumption of asbestos for brake linings is estimated at 70,000,000 feet, of which only 1,000,000 feet are in new cars. United States holds first place in manufacture of asbestos products, yet it produces only one per cent of the total output of raw material.

Mrs. Charles Black Names Committees on Arrangements
With Mrs. Roy Banta, Chairman of the Dramatic Committee—Program Announcement Later

BY HOPE HOLLISTER

DESPITE the torrid weather, the going away and the coming home, the out-of-town guests and the occasional parties, women of the city must not forget that fall is coming and that the approach of the autumn months means that the various clubs of the city will resume their meetings. Programs must be completed, committees must be appointed and general plans made for the coming year. Perhaps the busiest of these ever-aggressive club women during the past few weeks, has been Mrs. Charles Black, who is president of the largest city federated club, the Woman's Music Club.

Mrs. Black has announced that the first matinee artists' recital will be given at Memorial Hall, October the second, when Miss Dorothy Stolzenbach, prominent Lima pianist, and Miss Ruth Morris, talented violinist, whose home is in Liberty, Ind., and who is a class-mate of Miss Stolzenbach's at the College of Music, Cincinnati, will be presented. MRS. DAVIS IS SYMPATHETIC, A TASTEFUL
DRESSER AND A VERY CHARMING HOSTESS

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

Lima News Special Writer

If John W. Davis is elected president of the United States we will have for our first lady a charming, gracious woman who is slender and of medium height with blue-gray eyes, small aristocratic features and light chestnut colored hair sprinkled a bit with gray.

She has a dignity that could easily be austere at times but it goes perfectly with her cool, blond type. Yet she has an easy manner and a simplicity that is most appealing.

It is impossible to give a correct impression of Mrs. Davis, seeing her just once and seeing her at this time when, in spite of her happiness and pride in her husband's achievement, she is also depressed and sad on account of the death of her sister, Mrs. Percy Goff, who died the second day of the convention.

PROUD OF HUSBAND

Mrs. Davis' eyes filled with tears instantly at the mention of this sister and revealed to a very emotional nature, capable of deep feeling and devotion for those she loves.

"Of course I'm proud of my husband," she exclaimed. "Who wouldn't be? I feel right now just as any woman in this country would feel if her husband had just been nominated for president."

"But you must have been sure all along he would win," I said.

This made her laugh. "Who could have been sure of anything at this convention?" she asked.

MRS. JOHN W. DAVIS

"Naturally I did not attend any of the sessions, but I listened over the radio, and at no time could I have made any prophecies or prognostications."

Mrs. Davis was married in 1912. She has no children of her own but is devoted to Mr. Davis' daughter by his first wife, Mrs. William McMillan Adams, who lives in Denmark. She and her husband had planned to sail for England to attend the Bar Association in London and then to visit her there.

TASTEFUL DRESSER

One glance at Mrs. Davis is enough to assure you that she would always wear the right thing and look well in all types of clothes. When I saw her she was wearing a smartly draped black satin gown and a small black turban. She wore no jewels but a slender string of pearls and one finger ring.

She has always interested herself in society and philanthropy but she belongs to no clubs in New York, where she has lived the last two years. She is a member of the Woman's Democratic Club of Washington, however. She is an Episcopalian while her husband is a Presbyterian, and I understand they attend the Episcopal church together. She never went to college but received her education at home.

While her husband was ambassador to the Court of St. James in London during the difficult period immediately following the war, she gained an enviable reputation as a hostess. She could fit easily and naturally into the White House.

TRADEMARK ON IMPORTS SOUGHT BY CORK MAKERS

WASHINGTON.—The provision of the tariff law requiring that all imported commodities bear the name of the country of origin, is presenting knotty problems to the customs service, the latest of which has been brought forward by domestic manufacturers of corks, or plain bottle stoppers.

Certain home manufacturers have filed a complaint that foreign corks are not properly marked, and for two weeks there have been hearings and legal arguments and much looking up of law and precedent. The claim was made that each and every cork must be labelled, and the treasury doesn't know what to do, for it doesn't see any way in which an individual cork can be identified.

OPPOSING COLORS AID EFFECT

Dull-toned chairs or sofas are brightened by the use of pillows in one or two of complementary colors.

The first principle in the use of color, it has been shown, is to be sure that all the primary colors—red, yellow and blue—are present in some form or other. But there are ways to get what seems to be quite two colors in a room and yet comply with this principle.

This is by the use of complementary colors. A complementary color is one formed by a combination in equal ratio of two colors of the same kind as opposed to the third color in the triad.

Visual, formed by an equal mixture of red and blue, is the complementary of yellow. Green, formed by an equal mixture of yellow and blue, is the complementary of red. And orange, with equal proportions of yellow and red in it, is opposed to blue as a complementary.

Therefore, yellow and violet, or green and red, or blue and orange make a good combination. These colors, however, would not go good in a room if introduced in too great a proportion because they are practically basic colors and too vivid.

Since the room needs modification in color, to give the effect of purity and coolness, the tints and shades of the primary and secondary colors are mostly used. But in any event, touches of the three primary colors must be present. If there are two colors, or shades, they must be complementary. If there are three or more, they must be related closely enough to be identified as members of the same triad or its derivatives.

CLUTTERED ICE BOXES IN HOUSES DELAY SPEED OF WORKERS ON TIME ROUTE

CHICAGO.—(By Associated Press)—Your ice-man, provided he has an average route and a distributing territory in the residential district, shoulders two tons of ice a day, carrying each piece a distance of 50 feet, according to a survey compiled by the National Association of Ice Industries.

These 4,000 pounds of ice are divided among approximately 80 refrigerators, the survey shows, and the field of work covers an average distance of two miles. An ability to stand the physical strain, at a threat of impairing health, bothers the ice-man less than in keeping on schedule, the association says, which is endeavoring to put ice routes on the same basis of punctuality as the transportation systems.

"The ice-man's greatest trouble is keeping on scheduled time, because housewives frequently think he also is an expert in arranging

CREDIT DEMANDS SAP TRADE

Russians Seek Payment Delay up to Four Years

STOCKHOLM.—(By Associated Press)—Requests from Russia for long credit in Sweden, in some cases for periods of three to four years; slow business procedure and severe maintenance of the Soviet foreign trade monopoly, combined with almost insurmountable difficulties in the way of private Russian enterprise, are some of the things encountered by Swedish exporters dealing with Russia under the new trade agreement between the two countries, according to a statement given out by the Swedish General Export Association.

Since the exchange of ratifications of the treaty May 1 the deals closed have totalled not more than about $500,000, involving purchases of such Swedish products as paper, pulp, cream separators, steel plates, and agricultural machinery. Although the Russians have in certain cases asked for three or four years' postponement of payments, no credit of more than six months has so far been granted. The procedure is slow because all negotiations and orders must come through the Russian Trade Delegation in Stockholm, and this body must obtain competitive bids, not only from Swedish firms, but also from abroad.

While private enterprise is permitted in Russia, the Soviet is itself in competition with such business, and the individuals and private firms find their activity severely inspected and heavily burdened with taxes. Swedish firms, therefore, do not at present look for much business with Russia except thru the monopoly.

Marrying Out of the Schoolroom—Feeding a Green Apple to a Baby and Pasting Back Its Outstanding Ears With Mucilage

The Solution To Many Of The Difficulties—
Training School Courses In Motherhood—
The Fallacies Of Sophisticates

EDITOR'S NOTE: With unembellished candor, Mrs. Atherton here recounts her experiences in early married life. The frank details of this article may help many present-day young wives to avoid similar errors. For all readers, masculine and feminine, of every age, this article contains material from which significant conclusions regarding marriage may be drawn.

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

I have advocated scientific and psychological training for matrimony in one or two of my former articles but as I look back on my own experience, to say nothing of other notable examples past and present, it occurs to me there should be a special course in motherhood.

I spent the greater part of my time from eight to seventeen in boarding schools, for, being one of the most insufferably spoiled children that this country ever produced, my step-father quite reasonably refused to have me in the house. Consequently, altho my mother had two more children, I knew less of babies than the average girl reared at home.

I married out of the schoolroom and spent the first year at the country place of my father-in-law in Atherton, California, about thirty miles down the peninsula from San Francisco. There was some delay in the building of my husband's house; moreover, my mother-in-law was extremely anxious that the first child be born to one of the sons should arrive in the old family home.

LADIES DID NOT WRITE

My mother-in-law was a very remarkable woman (altho I am free to confess I gave her credit for little that was admirable at the time)—a South American of old Basque blood with a streak of Dutch; a combination that made her a model wife, mother and housekeeper. Altho she had lived in this country since the late sixties, she had never ceased to be horrified at the lax manner in which Americans brought up their children, and determined to remodel me into a fair likeness of her own, in other words, make me a proper wife for her favorite son and the right sort of mother for, she hoped, a numerous brood. With my avowed intention to be a writer, she had no patience whatever. Ladies in Spain do not write. That settled that.

She took me in hand at once and endeavored with increasing exasperation to make me over from the roots up. To teach me cooking proved impossible, quite apart from my own supreme indifference to the science, for the cook, a haughty, irascible and tyrannical Chinese, who seldom permitted her to enter the kitchen, hated me because, owing to my delicate appetite and dislike of oil and highly seasoned South American food, he was obliged to prepare separate dishes for me at each meal. Mrs. Atherton, altho she let him alone for the most part, could be as obstinate as himself, and thus he should do or leave.

But she knew better than to ask him to teach me anything, and so did I, one day, when I went over to the kitchen to take a message from Mrs. Atherton, he flung a gridiron at my head. I dodged it and never mentioned the incident. Mrs. Atherton entertained constantly and, if I had a paucity of domestic instincts, I was born with a certain amount of whimsical wisdom.

THE NIGHT OF A NEEDLE

The trousseau for the impending infant was elaborate and a trifle from by mother-in-law, but she insisted that I follow the example of the young wives of Spain and make a part of it myself. She soon gave up trying to make me run tucks, for combing expensive (she was both generous and thrifty) and to me the curved line was the line of beauty.

But on the subject of embroidering flannel petticoats she was inexorable. I rebelled bitterly. My grandmother had attempted to teach me to sew when I was little, but I hated the sight of a needle, and to this day, of course, she is off and sent me out to play. But mothers-in-law are a different proposition. There was no fond indulgence in mine, and her son should have a practical wife or it would not be her fault. For three hours a day I should sit by her side and learn to embroider. After that I could do as I pleased, although she disapproved of my love reading.

After that I could do as I pleased, although she disapproved of my love reading.

I succumbed. Being very young, I stood somewhat in awe of the first disciplinarian I had encountered. (Even at school I had managed to do as I pleased.) Everybody stood in awe of her for that matter. She was only a few feet higher and weighed two hundred pounds, but her dignity was enormous, and she had a will of cast iron. I always thought she would look well on a throne, or she was born to be a benevolent autocrat.

Well, there was no escape, so I conceived a subtle revenge. I would learn to embroider better than herself, and I did. If she was piqued, she didn't know it and exhibited my unnamable triumphs to her guests, with pride in both teacher and pupil, and let me off after the sixth petticoat. This child was admirably brought up by two devoted and experienced women and, as she was born with every virtue left out of me, I don't doubt she often congratulated herself secretly upon not having been left to my erratic government, altho far too polite to mention it.

I was probably an extreme case, owing to the fact that I was born to be a writer and nothing else unendowed by high heaven with either the maternal or the domestic instincts. But even when girls are born with all the instincts of their sex (as the vast majority are) they make serious—altho possibly not ridiculous—mistakes with their first-born, even if they are wise enough or fortunate enough not to marry too young. For that reason I would advocate preliminary instruction especially when they will not be able to afford the scientific nurse.

If an altruistic government will set up a training school for matrimony in every city—giving more fine women an opportunity to exercise their latent abilities and earn money—there could be in addition to lectures and lessons visits three times a week to

Peppen, the Medicine at Hunter's Drug Store, Brings Relief Where All Else Failed

Mrs. J. Lerch, of 184 1/2 Spring Street in speaking of Peppen, the famous medicine which has been so successfully introduced at Hunter's Drug Store, in part said:

"I know Peppen is the finest medicine I have ever taken and I want to recommend it to the people of Lima. For months I had been in a run down worn out condition. My stomach gave me lots of trouble and my nerves were in a terrible shape. Every morning I would wake up with a headache and the day usually got worse as the day went on. Finally I would have to go to bed and remain for several days at a time."

Peppen, the medicine at Hunter's Drug Store was recommended to me and I got a bottle. I want to say that Peppen did me more good than anything I have ever taken. From the very first dose I began to feel better and now I am in splendid health. Peppen is what made the change in me and I surely want to recommend it to the other women of Lima."

pects to stay married these days.

But sophisticates have an extremely narrow horizon. The world is not made up of sophisticates. They are not even numbered by the thousands, and in this country alone there are already something over one hundred and ten million people; of this number the greater proportion of girls have never heard of cognoscenti, intellectuals, sophisticates. Young women look forward to marrying and staying married. The greater number want children, and if like their husbands, they must continue to "hold down a job," they look forward to the time when both shall have saved enough to begin a family.

CIRCUMSTANCES, VITALITY

I have just read a cablegram from London stating that one of the women members of Parliament is about to resign, as she has three small children that demand her services, and she has neither time nor strength for both vocation and avocation.

This problem means nothing to Lady Astor, for she is able to afford a nurse for each child and is a woman of inexhaustible vitality, but it is quite conceivable that to a woman of moderate means, limited vigors and a normal conscience, to say nothing of deep maternal instincts, her sense of public duty, or even ambitions would go by the board if it came to an issue. All young wives are not blessed with grandmothers or maiden aunts.

The problem might be solved by day nurseries run in the interest of busy women of the educated classes by trained nurses who are also women of sympathetic nature and refinement.

This might also prove advantageous to "only children," who would thus grow up with playfellows and be far less likely to be spoiled.

In my next article, however, I shall have something to say about the importance of a happy home life in bending the youthful twig.

THIS GIRL LIKES KISSES AND ADMITS IT—CONSCIENCE KICKS

Susie Smart Reads Between the Lines and Answers Questions—Other Problems of Heart and Home Are Presented to The Lima News Expert

Dear Miss Smart: Will you please solve a problem for me? It is the old story of whether it is right to kiss a fellow or not. The natural answer is "no," but I don't know whether I can agree to that or not. I am 17 years old and have been going with a fellow in a crowd for about half a year. I like him very much and am convinced that he also cares for me. I am a little and always kiss him. I don't know if it is true that a fellow tries to get a girl's kiss. Before I met him I never was free with my kisses but I just can't put him off. I have a feeling because I don't know if it is right or rather just how wrong it is. Shall I stop kissing him and stand the consequences? Please suggest a remedy by which we can still be friends, if you think we are acting wrongly.

I don't think you are undecided. Seventeen. You like kissing this boy and you want me to tell you that I think it is all right for you to do so. "Fess up, row, don't you?"

Furthermore, I am of the opinion that what I tell you won't leave the least impression upon you, be frank, now, if I tell you to stop kissing him, will you stop? I'm not being very nice, am I?

Personally, I think that if you feel guilty about this thing, tell him so and if he tells you then, that he won't come any more or that you have to cease being friends, then I wouldn't worry. For, I wouldn't say he was very much of a gentleman and not worth salty tears.

Dear Miss Smart: Will you please tell me what days May 6, 1905, October 25, 1902 and October 28, 1923 were on? What are the meanings of the names Gertrude and Jean? My hair is medium brown and my eyes are dark brown and my skin colorless white. Can I wear the pastel shades? Is there anything I at would touch the skin white? How is my writing?

May 6 1905 was on a Wednesday, October 28, 1902 on a Tuesday and October 28, 1923 was on a Sunday.

Gertrude means strong with the spear and Jean means a gift of God. No I don't think you could wear the light or pastel shades. Bright colors, such as a bright yellow, red, navy blue and green would be good for you.

The following is a good skin bleach and will not injure the face. Benzoin tinc. 4 grams, borax 6 grams, spirits camphor, 10 grams and orange flower water 100 grams. Quite fancy isn't it?

Dear Miss Smart: Can you tell me of anything to make my hair grow? When I was about 16 years old I cut my hair and now since I have had my hair cut and wear it pulled, they are much shorter than the rest of my hair and I would like very much to have my hair all the same length. Not very long ago you told someone of a solution to have filled to make the hair stay in curl. I cut dry, then spray the walls and shelves with gasoline or with benzine (taking care to have no intense heat or flame near as they are both inflammable). Burn a sulphur candle, which is purchased at drug stores, inside the closet, closing the door.

Dear Miss Smart: Would you please give me the ages of these movie stars mentioned in these items? Hazel Keener, Marion Nash, Edith Johnson, F. M. J. Hays, and Robert T. Hays.

Miss Nash's address is 4145 1/2 Melrose-av., Los Angeles, Cal. I am unable to tell you her age. Edith Johnson is 27 years of age and can be addressed at 1708 Talmadge-st., Hollywood. Tom Mix can be addressed at the Fox studios and is 35 years of age. I am unable to give you any information concerning the other stars you mention.

Dear Miss Smart: I am in need of a little advice and thought maybe you could help me. I want to take a course in salesmanship or electricity, which would you advise me to take?

When I am with girls, I can't think of anything to say. How can I overcome this? Is Marian Nixon married? If so, who is her husband? How old is she? What is her address? How is my writing? May I write again? It really would be rather difficult for me to advise you what course to take, when I do not know you or know what you are interested in. Which are you more interested in? If you are inclined to be bashful, I don't think you would be able to talk to people very well, convincingly enough, to be a salesman, do you? Perhaps the electricity would be the best, that is, if you are interested in machinery and such.

Just forget that you are bashful! Talk just as if you were talking to a boy or an older companion. Talk of things you are interested in and that you can talk intelligently on. Don't think people are watching you, any more than they watch anyone else.

Marian Nixon's address is 4145 1/2 Melrose-av., Los Angeles. I do not know anything else concerning her, so you will have to write and ask her the questions yourself. Good. Yes, please write often.

THE WELL DRESSED WOMAN

By MARY MARSHALL

Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

CLOTHES THAT BRING COMFORT ON WARMEST DAYS

WHEN the thermometer begins to soar most women first begin to take thought of their hot-weather wardrobe. What they do not do is to strike a compromise between the convention that refuses to let us go about like South Sea Islanders and their own instinct to wear as little as possible while tropic weather prevails.

For most modern summer clothes are not really suitable for the very warmest days in summer. When the French dressmaker designs for the French woman she seldom makes clothes that are suitable for the really hot days that will come in July and August in most parts of our country, so renowned for weather extremes. So it often happens that many of the most charming French models made for midsummer dressed women wear in town on very hot days.

Hot Days in the City.

For the benefit of such inquirers here are two well dressed women come up from their summer places for a busy day in town, shopping and seeing to a dozen and one little business matters, with luncheon at their city club or favorite hotel restaurant. One of these women wears a straight, waist belted frock of white or brown checked chiffon trimmed around the abbreviated sleeves and at the collar and waist with little frills of narrow valencienne lace. Specially very fragile, chiffon and georgette in such rather subdued tones, are really excellently adapted to city wear in summer. With this airy and brown is quite in the picture the hat brim may be as narrow as you choose. The second smartly dressed woman up from her country place for the day chooses a frock of navy blue chiffon, and you may be surprised to know that she wears it over a salmon slip. This frock, like the brown and cream one, owes much of its appropriateness to its simplicity of line. Lacking any collar ornament whatever it is worn with a narrow scarf. A directoire poke of close narrow shape was worn with it. The hat is of navy blue with a bow at the front of black crepe ribbon.

For the woman who solves her problem of street dress in warm weather by means of a suit there is the chemise blouse. The separate blouse and skirt, no matter how frequently seen on the college campus, or about smart country clubs, really isn't appropriate for town wear. If you wear a suit then be persuaded that you must wear the well manage with precious little trying to leave most of them off. else on besides this chemise blouse. The feeling of smooth voile or georgette next one's skin is actually soothing, and the awareness that it is additional warmth and often there is no very great advantage in con-other "cool" color doubtless does something to keep one cool.

There are many women who find a green negligee a source of real comfort in warm weather. Even the woman who is particularly sensitive to color influences could hardly endure to wear a scarlet negligee on a day of tropic heat, though the material from which it was made were of the thinnest and lightest.

One charming lace trimmed pleated negligee of green georgette can be worn quite appropriately for dinner on a warm summer's day.

The question of bright colored clothes for warm weather is one that is still discussed. Theoretically they seem appropriate enough, for with all native races of the tropics or near tropics high colors are especially admired and worn. Benjamin A. Morton speaks of the costumes of the native women of Martinique as "ranging in vibrant electrical radiance from red of the flamboyant to purple of the bougainvillea; touches of color, in end- less procession, stare in the sun." But apparently we are almost unwilling as the French women to run the gamut of color in true tropical manner.

So while the French shop window are ablaze with brilliant-hued crepes and printed muslins, and there is much talk of bright colors for the summer, the reports from Paris are still to the effect that the smartest women in the city wear black. For the seashore white still rules supreme and women in this country seem to have become as much addicted to white for all sorts of summer weather.

At the beaches, says one observer in France, "the first hours in the morning are white—all white." For a walk in the morning a smart French woman chooses a little three-piece white alpaca suit, with golden yellow, violet, red, orange, a red or navy blue monogram over the heart, with sleeves "wide at the wrist and adorned with a few very wild and mad embroideries of black and red." With this are worn white kid pumps, white silk stockings, a white straw helmet trimmed with a red ribbon, a walking stick and a white scarf embroidered in the same manner as the sleeves.

For wear on the sands, white is again the choice—a very simple sheath frock of some sort of silk crepe, worn with a leather belt showing steel nailheads. With this a wide-brimmed, floppy hat or no hat at all and a parasol. As an alternative of the silk crepe frock, one of white-cotton fabric in homespun finish, showing wool embroidery in old rose and green, is suggested. But the embroidery must not be large or striking—for the rule at the smart French beaches seems to be that one must be in white all the morning.

For tennis, too, all white is the choice of French women who are looked upon as arbiters in such matters. For lunch white lace frocks are chosen. For sailing a thin white wool frock is suggested and for motoring "white frocks under green coats of kid, a leather helmet to match the coat, and a long scarf to fly like a flag."

White—And More White.

For afternoon tea again white—silk, lingerie or lace with a violet, blue, rose, green or yellow ribbon as the only concession to your craving for color. For evening white again—with ostrich feathers in soft shades of gold.

Apparently under this new rule of white for summer wear which many women in resorts outside Paris find pleasure in following, the only time when one can safely indulge one's taste for color is when taking one's ocean bath or lingering on the sands in bathing costume. The peignoir de bain, or bathing cape, seems to me vastly more important in the eyes of the French woman than the rules supreme and women in this country seem to have become as much addicted to white for all sorts of summer weather.

Perhaps some Americans know it better simply as bath toweling. For it is bath toweling of marvellously brilliant hues. Almost never is it white, but crimson, golden yellow, violet, red, orange, sometimes in a solid color but the more often in glorious mixtures of several or all of these colors. While the black bathing suit is still usual here and in France, there seems at the moment to be nothing smarter than pale almond green for the bathing suit. The French woman is inclined to wear a red patent leather belt with her pale green bathing suit, and the effect is really pleasant.

wearing are out of the question for women in America.

We ought to be thankful that we have at least got away from those old prejudices that made it seem not quite well bred to be comfortably clad on the warmest days. Until quite recently hosts of American women have wilted in warm weather under the notion that it was rather commonplace to appear in city streets not wearing some sort of wrap. That may have been an appropriate enough convention in England or on the continent, but even there women now feel quite suitably and appropriately dressed carrying or wearing only a scarf as a vestige of the wrap that was once considered indispensable.

Now We May Be Comfortable.

If your summer wardrobe is really not provided with appropriate hot-weather raiment, don't delude yourself that you can grin and bear it until cooler days come. With seven or eight weeks of this sort of thing ahead of you it is well worth your while to invest in a frock or two of light cool fabric, a broad brimmed hat and such lingerie and accessories as will complete your medium of apparel.

From the point of good taste and smartness most women apparently err in choosing the frock for the warm day in the city. This at least is a matter that is called for most frequent inquiries. "I find a suit unbearable to wear when shopping or attending to other business in the city on warm summer days. Yet I feel cheap in a thin summer frock. What would you suggest?" asks one.

So many girls and women go about the city in warm weather dressed in frocks more suitable for garden parties or country clubs," complains another. "There's a stenographer going to work on warm summer days in a headed flesh-colored georgette. Another wears a light blue cotton voile. Here is a young married woman shopping in the city in pleated sport skirt of yellow silk crepe with a sweater of yellow silk. Somehow they don't look right. Yet I don't like to wear a sturdy serge frock or a suit. Won't you give me some definite suggestion as to what really smartly

50-50 Plan Is Necessity

BY CYNTHIA GREY

HIS kisses left her cold. And this morning when he perfunctorily, it seemed, put his arms around her waist and essayed a peck at her cheek, Gertrude had an instinctive feeling that the endearment was purely mechanical.

Tom's affections, she stubbornly admitted, were commencing to wear the same unromantic habit of regularity which marked his casual attitude toward the whole of life.

Now that he had gone rushing from the door on the daily marathon of simultaneously gulping down a last mouthful of breakfast toast it was with a sigh that she reminiscently pored over their married life during the past year.

GERTRUDE had nothing of the temperamental genius about her. In fact she prided herself on sensible habits and spoke often of her ambition to be nothing if not an efficient and companionable wife.

But this "old shoe" type of matrimony was palling on her.

THE situation demanded solution through intelligence. The test would be crucial, Gertrude realized this.

If their wedded promises were being swamped in the seas of mediocrity, then something was fundamentally wrong. And in fairness she admitted that two parties were necessary to any such satisfactory bargain.

TURNING an introspective light on the situation, Gertrude wondered whether Tom sensed any unconscious thought that she might have had in considering that he had married a notch too high and was being lifted to her plane through her efforts.

Knowing him for a stubborn creature, she was aware that any such attitude on her part would but serve to force him into his shell of passive resistance and undoubtedly refrigerate the spontaneity of his love.

THERE was that occasion when he had remarked about Lillian's finance as her "gentleman friend." Likewise his conversation at times was flippantly ordinary.

He brought in the unthinking vocabulary of the day and sent several shafts into her aesthetic soul by mentioning such things as "sweet daddies" and "mamas" in presence of their friends.

GENTLY at first and then more bitterly, she has upbraided him for these social slips.

But Tom never argued with her. Rebuke seemed to do something more than hurt him. It left him astute. A look she never tried to think of came into his eyes when they had their little scenes following such differences.

"YOU'RE too prim and proper, Gert," he would say to her. "Why must I be a living example out of the pages of Aunt Lillian's book of etiquette?"

"You know that I know better, but being stiff all the time isn't suitable. Let me act as I want to. Why must you constantly try to dictate to me?"

IT was a funny thing that in this day of feminine freedom with the women liberated to leisure through twentieth century conveniences and considerate husbands that they should run so amuck with their intelligence.

Gertrude sorrowfully thought of that.

"I'm just a girl," she admitted. Tom is as good as god and here I am trying to reform him. It makes me feel like a little pig."

That very moment age changed her code.

From then on she would become the cheerful and useful person.

The decision was carried out and Tom re-proached. No more bickering stirred the household.

"You just have to accept life, Tom dear, don't you?" Gertrude remarked one evening.

"Yes, I guess you're right," he replied, "and husbands, too."

"No, you mean well meaning and over-ambitious wives," she came back.

And then they both laughed.

PARIS designers, ever alert for some new motif, have gone to the jungles and the barnyards.

Back to nature they have gone in their search for colors, designs and textures.

No one knows who started it. Paris fashions are that way, sometimes.

Two or three seasons ago the Egyptian influence was cultivated to be the designers of things that women will wear. The fad was spontaneous, like most fads, but its spontaneity was easily traceable to the opening of the tomb of King Tut Ankh-Amen in the Valley of the Nile. At the time things Egyptian were given a certain glamor by the popular mind and the modistes readily capitalized this.

Then when Andre Citroen's first caterpillar car crossed the great desert of northern Africa, Moroccan materials became the vogue and embroidery designs were greatly influenced in much the same way.

NO CHINESE INFLUENCE

And strange though it may seem, the gowns of many American women paid tribute to Citroen, whom they had never seen and of whom a great number had never heard!

France, as yet, has felt slightly the influence of Mah Jongg. The recent Mah Jongg dress, so exploited in America, is solely an American creation. Paris dress-makers say. Even though the gown originated in Paris, it was but the figment of the imagination of newspaper correspondents and not dressmakers, they insist. France, it is true, has not succumbed to the influence of the East Wind as has America.

But how can the craze for things animal be explained? No circus has come to Europe. There has

Here's Tip To Success

BY EUGENIA WALLACE
Leader in Professional Women's Clubs Movement

A CERTAIN school announced executive training for women and women straightway beat a path to its door. "What can you do for me?" they cried. "I have been in business 10 years, 15, 20, and can go no farther."

Some were merely suffering the growing pains of ambition. It was easy to give them the advanced courses and the up-to-date methods that stimulate and inspire. The others had dug into ruts and couldn't get out and where is the school that can help them?

The only remedy is to begin all over again. Miss Jones did. She had overheard her employers discussing her and the job higher up. "Too bad we can't promote her," one said, "but she'd get hopelessly muddled in the gearing."

"Yes," the other replied, "we can't afford to put a drudge in a position that should be training ground for a future executive."

A drudge! Caught by the tentacles of endless routine—lost her vision! In nine cases out of ten that is the whole trouble, and progress is blocked down the line.

If woman had men's genius for delegating detail she would know that the basic rule of success is—"First, learn to do the smallest thing in your business, then work to get yourself in position to have some one do it for you."

Miss Jones woke up to this, and to several other things. She took a fortnight's vacation and a trip and did some vigorous soul searching.

When she returned she bought some new clothes, joined a club and an evening class at the university and read the trade magazines. She asked for an assistant and knocked off at 5 o'clock.

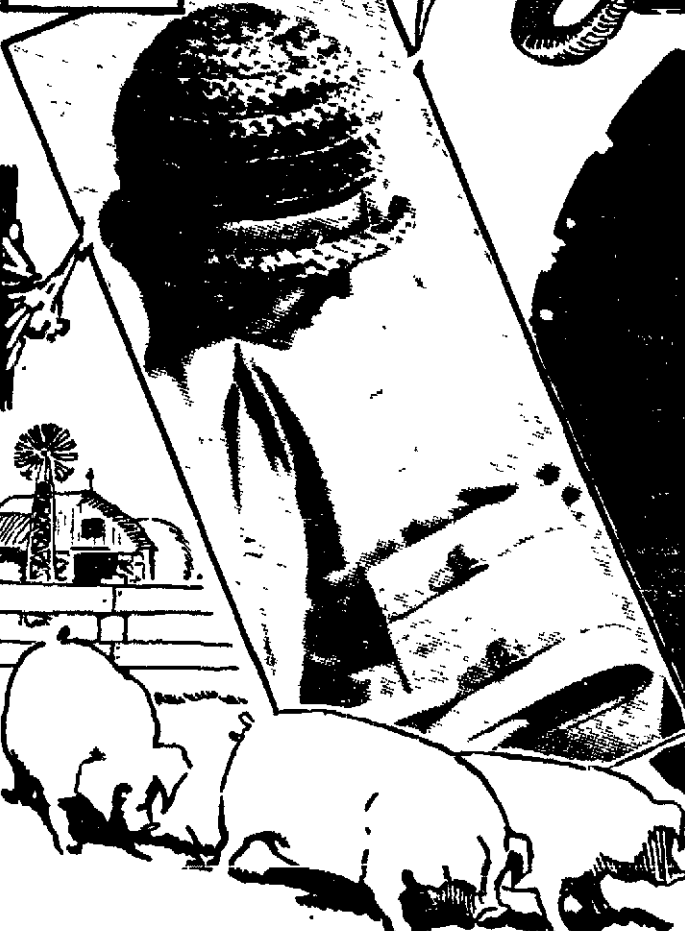

She learned to "play" after hours—in other words, she got all the mental ventilation possible and began to enjoy her work. After that ideas came—and advancement.

Are you muddled in the gearing? Caught so fast that you can't contribute anything—ideas or customers or new business—and therefore cannot advance?

Then it is time to stop and think (all freedom must begin in the mind) and to work easily and keep your vision. The drudge digs hard and digs down.

Iced Drink Time Now

ICED drinks can be divided into two classes, those with a definite amount of food value and those of an acid quality which stimulate the appetite.

Iced chocolate and coffee are rich in sugar and fat. These drinks should be served with a meal which is scanty in fat and sugar. Otherwise the cold drink will defeat its purpose and be heating rather than cooling.

The tartness of most drinks made with tea as a basis acts as a stimulant.

An iced drink must be just as cold as ice will make it, for a would-be cold drink that is just cooled is less acceptable on a hot day than a piping hot drink.

ICED TEA

Iced tea is best made of hot tea. Fill tea glasses with cracked ice and pour ordinary freshly brewed tea on the ice. If the tea touches the glass a broken tumbler is the result.

Make the tea as strong as for hot tea. The melted ice weakens it enough to make it just right. Iced tea should not be as strong as hot tea. Iced tea made in this fashion has the same clearness and fragrance as hot tea. Serve slices of lemon liberally sprinkled with granulated sugar with the tea. A splash of mint crushed against the glass changes the taste and is refreshing.

TEA PUNCH

Two teaspoons tea, 4 cups water, bottle soda, 1/2 cup lemon juice, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup water.

Put sugar and 1/2 cup water in saucer and bring slowly to boiling point. Boil 2 minutes. Pour the 4 cups of freshly boiling water over tea leaves and let stand 5 minutes. Fill glasses with cracked ice and pour the hot tea on the ice making the glasses about half full. Add 1 tablespoonful of the sugar and 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice. Fill the glasses up with gingerale. This rule will make 8 glasses. The tea may be poured over ice in a large pitcher or punch bowl and the drink mixed all at once.

ICED COFFEE

Iced coffee is made of fresh hot coffee in just the same way that iced tea is made. A spoonful of cream is usually put in the glass with the cracked ice. A spoonful of whipped cream is then put on top. Serve with granulated sugar.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

GIVERSITY, in the capital, held its annual commencement exercises. As is the custom a procession was held from the treasury building steps to the hall wherein the diplomas were distributed. But the solemn procession of capped and gowned students this year was not like that of previous ones. There was something different. Those who watched the youngsters moving slowly realized there was a vague uneasiness in the air. Just what it was they did not know—something intangible, some divine power seemed to be guiding that line of 435 students.

People shifted their feet uneasily. They turned their eyes to the moving line of black-clad figures. They searched for an answer.

That line was led by a girl who had no eyes!

Eleanor Catherine Judd is her name.

When Eleanor was three months old the light of this world was turned off.

As she grew older and realization of her affliction dawned upon her, she began to adjust her life. She had always, even when a child, longed to specialize in research work, microscopic analysis of plant and animal life. It was the one thing she longed to do. And she knew she never could.

BRAIN SHARPENED

The family moved to South Bend, Ind. She went to school there. And as she grew she determined that an impossible ambition would not shatter her life.

The family moved to Washington. Again she went to school and then to college. With one phase of life closed to her forever, she developed along other lines. Her brain sharpened. Her voice mellowed. Her thoughts tumbled over each other in their anxiety to fill the void left by her unseeing eyes.

Then graduation and with it a master of arts degree.

"And now?" she said, "now I don't just know what I'll do—exactly."

same urge that actuated other designers and has brought a pig-skin purse trimmed with narrow straps and gold dipped buckles and a hat band to match.

But the chicken, the elephant, the snake, the lizard, the leopard, the parrot, the crocodile, the mouse, and the pig are not the only animals that have been utilized.

Capes stolen in design from the backs of the zebra and decorations for dresses from the plumes of birds are being shown.

WHY STOP NOW?

And if the pig and the chicken, have been used, why not the family goat? Will Paris not see its bewitching manikins wearing hats adorned with diabolic horns?

And if the fad makes its way to America, will there not be a utilization of the American animals? What a cloak, gorgeous in its luxury, could be made of the buffalo skin! Even the cropped tail of the Missouri mule offers an art motif not to be overlooked in the search for animal adornments.

The grizzly bear and the prairie dog—even the lowly squirrel may be torn from their haunts to make the fapper falter.

LIKES DRAMA

"But we've got things I'm crazy about the drama. I go to see most every play that comes to Washington. I love it. It's a life to me. And we've been having fairly good mind-cures to Washington."

My father can't understand my liking for jazz, but I think it's a distinctive type of American music, some of it at least. Of course my father is shabby and not worth hearing, but properly paid, the way Paul Whiteman gives it for instance, is wonderful, isn't it?

GENIUS

And as she grew there came to the one who listened the realization that here sat a genius. A girl just turned 23 with a life before her. She never would be able to see. To most of us that would be crushing. But to Eleanor Catherine Judd the future held much. Some day she would be a great singer.

Truly, she was an object lesson for grumblers.

She has attained happiness—and who can say that much for most of us?

"I'll go on with my singing. Some day maybe I'll do concert work." She seemed to be musing aloud. "You know lack of eyes is not a handicap there. And I want to write. I want to take up journalism."

"I've developed a sense of humor and if I can I'll write funny things that will make people laugh and forget their troubles. There are

CLOTHES THAT BRING COMFORT ON WARMEST DAYS

WHEN the thermometer begins to show most women first begin to take thought of their wardrobe. But what they should be thinking of is a compromise between the summer dress and the winter dress. The summer dress is not a compromise between the summer dress and the winter dress. The summer dress is not a compromise between the summer dress and the winter dress.

Hot Days in the City.

For the benefit of such inquirers here are two well dressed women who come up from their summer places for a busy day in town, shopping and seeing to a dozen and one little business matters, with luncheon at their city club or favorite hotel restaurant. One of these women wears a straight white belted frock of white cotton with a black ribbon around the waist and at the collar and vestee.

For most more summer clothes are not really suitable for the very warmest days in summer. When the French dressmaker designs for the French woman, she makes clothes that are suitable for the really hot days that will come in July and August in most parts of our country, so renowned for weather extremes. So it often happens that many of the most charming French models made for midsummer is quite in the picture the hat trim may be as narrow as you choose. The second smartly dressed woman up from her country place for the day chooses a frock of navy blue chiffon, and you may be surprised to know that she wears it over a salmon slip. This frock, like the brown and navy one, owes much of its appropriateness to its simplicity of line. Lacking any collar ornament whatever it is worn with a narrow scarf. A director's joke of close narrow shape was worn with it. The hat is of navy blue with a bow at the front of black silk ribbon.

For the woman who solves her problem of street dress in warm weather by means of a suit there is the chemise blouse. The separate blouse and skirt, no matter how frequently seen on the college campus or about smart country clubs, really is not appropriate for town wear. If you wear a suit then be persuaded that you must wear the well manage with precious little trying to leave most of them off. The feeling of smooth voile or georgette next one's skin is actually soothing, and the awareness that it is colored a bluish mauve, green or other "cool" color doubtless does something to keep one cool.

There are many women who find a green negligee a source of real comfort in warm weather. Even when the woman who is not particularly ery in old rose and green, is sensitive to color influences could hardly endure to wear a scarlet negligee on a day of tropic heat, rule at the smart French beaches though the material from which it seems to be that one must be in was made were of the thinnest and white all the morning.

One charming lace trimmed choice of French women who are looked upon as arbiters in such can be worn quite appropriately for dinner on a warm summer's day. The question of bright colored clothes for warm weather is one that is still discussed. Theoretically they seem appropriate enough, for with all native races of the tropics or near-tropics high colors are especially admired and worn. Benjamin A. Morton speaks of the costumes of the native women of Martinique as "ranging in vibrant electrical radiance from reds of the flamboyant to purple of the bougainvillea, torches of color, in endless procession afloat in the sun" in soft shades of gold.

Apparently under this new rule of white for summer wear which many women in France outside Paris and elsewhere in following, the only time when one can safely indulge one's taste for color to the crepes and printed muslins, and there is much talk of bright colors for the summer, the reports from Paris are still to the effect that the smartest women in the city wear black. For the seashore white still rules supreme and women in this country seem to have become as much addicted to white for all sorts of summer weather.

At the beaches, says one observer in France, "the first hours in the better simply as bath toweeling, morning are white—all white." For a walk in the morning a smart French woman chooses a smart three-piece white alpaca suit with a red or navy blue monogram over the heart, with sleeves "wide at the more often in elegant mixtures of several or all of these colors. While the black bathing suit is still usual here and in France, there seems at the moment to be nothing smarter than pale almond a red ribbon walking stick and a white scarf embroidered in the same manner as the sleeves. For wear on the sands, white is again the choice—a very simple sheath frock of some sort of silk crepe worn with a leather belt showing steel buckles. With this a wide-brimmed, floppy hat or no wearing are out of the question for women in America.

We ought to be thankful that we have at least got away from those old prejudices that made it seem not quite well bred to be comfortably clad on the warmest days. Until quite recently hosts of American women have willed in warm weather under the notion that it was rather commonplace to appear in city streets not wearing some sort of wrap. That may have been an appropriate enough convention in England or on the continent, but even there women in foot quite suitably and appropriately dressed carrying or wearing only a scarf as a vestige of the wrap that was once considered indispensable.

Now We May Be Comfortable.

If your summer wardrobe is really not provided with appropriate hot-weather raiment, don't delude yourself that you can grin and bear it until cooler days come. With seven or eight weeks of this sort of thing ahead of you it is well worth your while to invest in a frock or two of light cool fabric, a broad brimmed hat and such lingerie and accessories as will complete your modicum of apparel.

From the point of good taste and smartness in women apparently err in choosing the frock for the warm day in the city. This at least is a matter that has called for most frequent inquiries. "I find a suit unbearable to wear when shopping or attending to other business in the city on warm summer days. Yet I feel cheap in a thin summer frock. What would you suggest?" asks one.

So many girls and women go about the city in warm weather dressed in frocks more suitable for garden parties or country clubs," complains another. "Here's a stenographer going to work on warm summer days in a beaded flesh-colored georgette. Another wears a light blue cotton voile. Here is a young married woman shopping in the city in a pleated sport skirt of yellow silk crepe with a sweater of yellow silk. Somehow they don't look right. Yet I don't like to wear a sturdy serge frock or a suit. Won't you give me some definite suggestion as to what really smartly frock nude stockings and gloves are worn with brown satin pumps. The "nude" in this question lacks any of the rose tints, matching almost exactly the color of the chiffon. A wide-brimmed brown hat trimmed only with ribbon bound around the crown and tied at the side back is worn—a frank admission that a summer sun must sometimes call a halt on the mode of the very small hat. Oddly enough many women choose the wide-brimmed hat for town wear because they dispense with a parasol when in town, while in the country when a gay parasol

"And now," she said, "now I don't just know what I'll do—exactly."

"I'll go on with my singing. Some day maybe I'll do concert work." She seemed to be musing aloud. "You know lack of eyes is not a handicap there. And I want to write. I want to take up journalism."

"I've developed a sense of humor and if I can I'll write funny things that will make people laugh and forget their troubles. There are troubles in this world, you know. 'Blindness is a handicap,' she said simply. "A terrible handicap. We who know we'll never see do develop spiritually rather fast. We become more tolerant. We want to ease the pains of the world we know."

WHY STOP NOW?

And if the pig and the chicken have been used, why not the family goat? Will Paris not see its bewitching manikins wearing hats adorned with diabolic horns?

And if the fad makes its way to America, will there not be a utilization of the American animals?

What a cloak, gorgeous in its luxury, could be made of the buffalo skin! Even the cropped tail of the Missouri mule offers an apt motif not to be overlooked in the search for animal adornments.

The grizzly bear and the prairie dog—even the lowly squirrel may be torn from their haunts to make the flapper fairer.

LIKES DRAMA

"But we carry things I'm crazy about the drama. I go to see most every play that comes to Washington. I love music. It is life to me. And we've been having fairly good movie come to Wash-ton."

GENIUS

And as she spoke there came to the one who listened the realization that here sat a genius. A girl just turned 23 with a life before her. She never would be able to see. To most of us that would be crushing. But to Eleanor Catherine Judd the future held much. Some day she would be a great singer.

Truly, she was an object lesson for grumblers.

She has attained happiness—and who can say that much for most of us?

Iced Drink Time Now

ICED drinks can be divided into two classes, those with a definite amount of food value and those of an acid quality which stimulate the appetite.

Iced chocolate and coffee are rich in sugar and fat. These drinks should be served with a meal which is scanty in fat and sugar. Otherwise the cold drink will defeat its purpose and be heating rather than cooling.

The tartness of most drinks made with tea as a basis acts as a stimulant.

An iced drink must be just as cold as ice will make it, for a would-be cold drink that is just cooled is less acceptable on a hot day than a piping hot drink.

ICED TEA

Iced tea is best made of hot tea. Fill tea glasses with cracked ice and pour ordinary freshly brewed tea on the ice. If the tea touches the glass a broken tumbler is the result.

Make the tea as strong as for hot tea. The melted ice weakens it enough to make it just right. Iced tea should not be as strong as hot tea. Iced tea made in this fashion has the same clearness and fragrance as hot tea. Serve slices of lemon liberally sprinkled with granulated sugar with the tea. A sprig of mint crushed against the glass changes the taste and is refreshing.

TEA PUNCH

Two teaspoons tea, 4 cups water, bottle ginger ale, 3 lemons, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup water.

Put sugar and 1/2 cup water in saucepan and bring slowly to boiling point. Boil 2 minutes. Pour the 4 cups of freshly cooling water over tea leaves and let stand 5 minutes. Fill glasses with cracked ice and pour the hot tea on the ice, making the glasses about half full. Add 1 tablespoonful of the syrup and 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice. Fill the glasses up with ginger ale. This rule will make 5 glasses. The tea may be poured over ice in a large pitcher or punch bowl and the drink mixed all at once.

ICED COFFEE

Iced coffee is made of fresh hot coffee in just the same way that iced tea is made. A spoonful of cream is usually put in the glass with the cracked ice. A spoonful of whipped cream is then put on top. Serve with granulated sugar.

THE WELL DRESSED WOMAN

CLOTHES THAT BRING COMFORT ON WARMEST DAYS

WHEN the thermometer begins to soar most women first begin to take thought of their hot-weather wardrobe, what they shall put on to strike a compromise between the convention that refuses to let us do about like South Sea Islanders and their own instinct to wear as little as possible while tropic weather prevails.

For most more summer clothes are not really suitable for the very warmest days in summer. When the French dressmaker designs for the French woman, she seldom makes clothes that are suitable for the really hot days that will come in July and August in most parts of our country, so renowned for weather extremes. So it often happens that many of the most charming French models made for midsummer

Hot Days in the City.

For the benefit of such inquirers here are two well dressed women come up from their summer places for a busy day in town, shopping and seeing to a dozen and one little business matters, with luncheon at their city club or favorite hotel and a straight, smart, belted frock of brown and cream checked chiffon, trimmed around the shoulders with a wide ribbon, and at the collar and waist with little folds of narrow valence. Seemingly very French, chignon and georgette, in such or extreme. So it often happens that many of the most charming French models made for midsummer is quite in the picture the hat brim may be as narrow as you choose.

The second smartly dressed woman up from her country place for the day chooses a frock of navy blue chiffon, and you may be surprised to know that she wears it over a salmon slip. This frock, like the brown and cream one, owes much of its appropriateness to its simplicity of line. Lacking any collar ornament whatever it is worn with a narrow scarf. A directoire poke or close narrow shape was worn with it. The hat is of navy blue with a bow at the front of black crepe ribbon.

For the woman who solves her problem of street dress in warm weather by means of a suit there is the chemise blouse. The separate blouse and skirt, no matter how frequently seen on the college campus, or about smart country clubs, really isn't appropriate for town wear. If you wear a suit then be persuaded that you must wear the else on besides this chemise blouse. The feeling of smooth voile or georgette next one's skin is actually soothing, and the awareness that it is colored a bluish mauve, green or is no very great advantage in con-

other "cool" color doubtless does something to keep one cool.

There are many women who find a green negligee a source of real comfort in warm weather. Even the woman who is not particularly sensitive to color influences could hardly endure to wear a scarlet negligee on a day of tropic heat, though the material from which it was made were of the thinnest and lightest.

One charming lace trimmed negligee of green georgette can be worn quite appropriately for dinner on a warm summer's day.

The question of bright colored clothes for warm weather is one that is still discussed. Theoretically they seem appropriate enough, for with all native races of the tropics or near tropics high colors are especially admired and worn. Benjamin A. Morton speaks of the costumes of the native women of Martinique as "ranging in vibrant electrical radiance from red of the flamboyant to purple of the bougainvillea; torches of color, in endless procession, aflame in the sun."

But apparently we are almost as unwilling as the French women to run the gamut of color in true tropical manner. So while the French shop windows are ablaze with brilliant-hued crepes and printed muslins, and there is much talk of bright colors for the summer, the reports from Paris are still to the effect that the smartest women in the city wear black. For the seashore white still rules supreme and women in this country seem to have become as much addicted to white for all sorts of summer weather.

At the beaches, says one observer in France, "the first hours in the morning are white—all white." For a walk in the morning a smart French woman chooses a little three-piece white alpaca suit, with a red or navy blue monogram over the heart, with sleeves "wide at the wrists and adorned with a few very wild and mad embroideries of black and red." With this are worn white kid pumps, white silk stockings, a white straw helmet trimmed with a red ribbon, a walking stick and a white scarf embroidered in the same manner as the sleeves.

For wear on the sands, white is again the choice—a very simple sheath frock of some sort of silk crepe worn with a leather belt showing steel nailheads. With this a wide-brimmed, floppy hat or no hat at all and a peaked. As an alternative of the silk crepe frock, a green negligee a source of real comfort in warm weather. Even the woman who is not particularly sensitive to color influences could hardly endure to wear a scarlet negligee on a day of tropic heat, though the material from which it was made were of the thinnest and lightest.

For tennis, too, all white is the choice of French women who are looked upon as arbiters in such matters. For lunch white lace frocks are chosen. For sailing a thin white wool frock is suggested and for motoring "white frocks under green coats of kid, a leather helmet to match the coat, and a long scarf to fly like a flag."

White—And More White.

For afternoon tea again white—silk, lingerie or lace with a violet, blue, rose, green or yellow ribbon electrical radiance from red of the flamboyant to purple of the bougainvillea; torches of color, in endless procession, aflame in the sun."

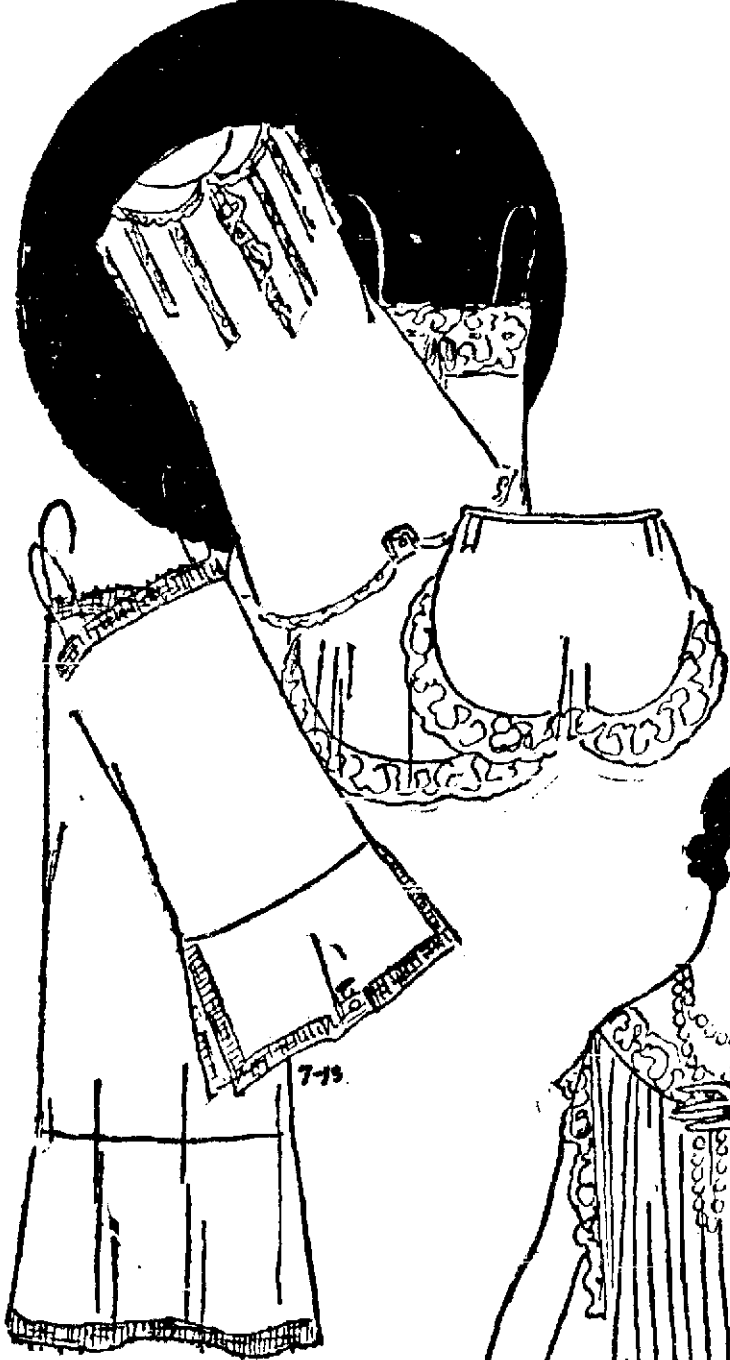

Apparently under this new rule of white for summer wear which many women in resorts outside Paris find pleasure in following, the only time when one can safely indulge one's taste for color to the full is when taking one's ocean bath or lingering on the sands in bathing costume. The pelagou de bain, or bathing cape, seems to me vastly more important in the eyes of the French woman than the rules supreme and women in this country seem to have become as much addicted to white for all sorts of summer weather.

Perhaps some Americans know it better simply as bath towel. But it is bath toweling of mar-velously brilliant hues. Almost never is it white, but crimson, golden yellow, violet, red, orange, a solid color, but more often in glorious mixtures of several or all of these colors.

While the black bathing suit is still usual here and in France, kid pumps, white silk stockings, a white straw helmet trimmed with a red ribbon, a walking stick and a white scarf embroidered in the same manner as the sleeves.

For wear on the sands, white is again the choice—a very simple sheath frock of some sort of silk crepe worn with a leather belt showing steel nailheads. With this a wide-brimmed, floppy hat or no wearing are out of the question for women in America.

We ought to be thankful that we have at least got away from those old prejudices that made it seem not quite well bred to be comfortably clad on the warmest days. Until quite recently hosts of American women have wilted in warm weather under the notion that it was rather commonplace to appear in city streets not wearing some sort of wrap. That may have been an appropriate enough convention in England or on the continent, but even there women now feel quite suitably and appropriately dressed carrying or wearing only a scarf as a vestige of the wrap that was once considered indispensable.

Now We May Be Comfortable.

If your summer wardrobe is really not provided with appropriate hot-weather raiment, don't delude yourself that you can grin and bear it until cooler days come. With seven or eight weeks of this sort of thing ahead of you it is well worth your while to invest in a frock or two of light, cool fabric, a broad brimmed hat and such lingerie and accessories as will complete your modicum of apparel.

From the point of good taste and smartness most women apparently err in choosing the frock for the warm day in the city. This at least is a matter that has called for most frequent inquiries. "I find a suit unbearable to wear when shopping or attending to other business in the city on warm summer days. Yet I feel cheap in a thin summer dress. What would you suggest?" asks one.

"So many girls and women go about the city in warm weather dressed in frocks more suitable for garden parties or country clubs," complains another. "Here's a stenographer going to work on warm summer days in a beaded flesh-colored georgette. Another wears a light blue cotton voile. Here is a young married woman shopping in the city in pleated sport skirt of yellow silk crepe with a sweater of yellow silk. Somehow they don't look right. Yet I don't like to wear a stuffy serge frock or a suit. Won't you give me some definite suggestion as to what really smartly frock nude stockings and gloves are jacket all day, at most only slip-worn with brown satin pumps. The ping it from your shoulders when "nude" in this question lacks any you eat luncheon. Even this was of the rose tinge, matching almost exactly the ecru of the chiffon, but recently so many women have taken off their suit jackets at luncheon that the old rule against it must be outlawed.

The Chemise Blouse.

The chemise blouse is just what the hat. Oddly enough many women choose the wide-brimmed hat for town wear because they dispense number of necessary garments. The town wear because they dispense with a parasol when in town, while slender young woman who finds in the country when a gay parasol corsets unnecessary can perfectly

50-50
Plan Is Necessity

BY CYNTHIA GREY

HIS kisses left her cold. And this morning when he perfunctorily, it seemed, put his arms around her waist and essayed a peck at her cheek, Gertrude had an instinctive feeling that the endearment was purely mechanical.

Tom's affections, she stubbornly admitted, were commencing to wear the same unromantic habit of regularity which marked his casual attitude toward the whole of life.

Now that he had gone rushing from the door on the daily marathon of simultaneously gulping down a last mouthful of breakfast toast it was with a sigh that she reminiscently pored over their married life during the past year.

GERTRUDE had nothing of the temperamental genius about her. In fact she prided herself on sensible habits and spoke often of her ambition to be nothing if not an efficient and companionable wife.

But this "old phoe" type of matrimony was palling on her.

THE situation demanded solution through intelligence. The test would be crucial, Gertrude realized this.

If their wedded promises were being swamped in the seas of mediocrity, then something was fundamentally wrong. And in fairness she admitted that two parties were necessary to any such satisfactory bargain.

TURNING an introspective light on the situation, Gertrude wondered whether Tom sensed any unconscious thought that she might have had in considering that he had married a notch too high and was being lifted to her plane through her efforts.

Knowing him for a stubborn creature, she was aware that any such attitude on her part would but serve to force him into his shell of passive resistance and undoubtedly refrigerate the spontaneity of his love.

THERE was that occasion when he had remarked about Lillian's finance as her "gentleman friend." Likewise his conversation at times was flippantly ordinary.

He brought in the unthinking vocabulary of the day and sent several shafts into her aesthetic soul by mentioning such things as "sweet daddies" and "mammas" in presence of their friends.

GENTLY at first and then more bitterly, she has upbraided him for these social slips.

But Tom never argued with her. Rebuke seemed to do something more than hurt him. It left him austere. A look she never tried to think of came into his eyes when they had their little scenes following such differences.

"YOU'RE too prim and proper, Gert," he would say to her. "Why must I be a living example out of the pages of Aunt Lizzie's book of etiquette?" "You know that I know better. But being stiff all the time isn't sciable. Let me act as I want to. Why must you constantly try to dictate to me?"

IT was a funny thing that in this day of feminine freedom with the women liberated to leisure through twentieth century conveniences and considerate husbands that they should run so amuck with their intelligence. Gertrude sorrowfully thought of Tom.

"I'm just a little," she admitted. Tom was as good as gold and here he was trying to reform her. It makes me feel like a little pig."

That very moment she changed her code.

From then on she would become the cheerful and useful person.

The decision was carried out and Tom r reproached. No more bickering stirred the household.

"You two have to accept life, Tom dear, don't you?" Gertrude remarked one evening.

"Yes, I guess you're right," he replied, "and husbands, too."

"No, you mean wallowing and overambitious wives," she came back.

And then they both laughed.

PARIS designers, ever alert for some new motif, have gone to the jungles and the barnyards.

Back to nature they have gone in their search for colors, designs and textures.

No one knows who started it. Paris fashions are that way, sometimes.

Two or three seasons ago the Egyptian influence was cultivated to be the designers of things that women will wear. The fad was spontaneous, like most fads, but its spontaneity was easily traceable to the opening of the tomb of King Tut Ankh-Amen in the Valley of the Nile. At the time things Egyptian were given a certain glamor by the popular mind and the modistes readily capitalized this.

Then when Andre Citroen's first caterpillar car crossed the great desert of northern Africa, Moroccan materials became the vogue and embroidery designs were greatly influenced in much the same way.

NO CHINESE INFLUENCE

And strange though it may seem, the gowns of many American women paid tribute to Citroen, whom they had never seen and of whom a great number had never heard!

France, as yet, has felt slightly the influence of Mah Jongg. The recent Mah Jongg dress, so exploited in America, is solely an American creation. Paris dress-makers say. Even though the gown originated in Paris, it was but the figment of the imagination of newspaper correspondents and not dressmakers, they insist. France, it is true, has not succumbed to the influence of the East Wind as has America.

But how can the craze for things animal be explained? No circus has come to Europe. There has

Here's Tip To Success

BY EUGENIA WALLACE
Leader in Professional Women's Clubs Movement

A CERTAIN school announced executive training for women and women straightaway beat a path to its door. "What can you do for me?" they cried. "I have been in business 10 years, 15, 20, and can go no farther."

Some were merely suffering the growing pains of ambition. It was easy to give them the advanced courses and the up-to-date methods that stimulate and inspire. The others had dug into ruts and couldn't get out—and where is the school that can help them?

The only remedy is to begin all over again. Miss Jones did. She had overheard her employers discussing her and the job higher up. "Too bad we can't promote her," one said, "but she'd get hopelessly muddled in the gearing."

"Yes," the other replied, "we can't afford to put a drudge in a position that should be training ground for a future executive."

A drudge! Caught by the tentacles of endless routine—lost her vision! In nine cases out of ten that is the whole trouble, and progress is blocked down the line.

If woman had man's genius for delegating detail she would know that the basic rule of success is— "First, learn to do the smallest thing in your business, then work to get yourself in position to have some one do it for you."

Miss Jones woke up to this, and to several other things. She took a fortnight's vacation and a trip and did some vigorous soul searching.

When she returned she bought some new clothes, joined a club and an evening class at the university and read the trade magazines. She asked for an assistant and knocked off at 5 o'clock.

She learned to "play" after hours—in other words, she got all the mental ventilation possible and began to enjoy her work. After that ideas came—and advancement.

Are you muddled in the gearing? Caught so fast that you can't contribute anything—ideas or customers or new business—and therefore cannot advance?

Then it is time to stop and think (all freedom must begin in the mind), and to work easily and keep your vision. The drudge digs hard and digs down.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

GIVERSITY, in the capital, held its annual commencement exercises. As is the custom, a procession was held from the treasury building steps to the hall wherein the diplomas were distributed. But the solemn procession of capped and gowned students this year was not like that of previous ones. There was something different. Those who watched the youngsters moving slowly realized there was a vague uneasiness in the air. Just what it was they did not know—something intangible, some divine power seemed to be guiding that line of 435 students.

People shifted their feet uneasily. They turned their eyes to the moving line of black-clad figures. They searched for an answer.

That line was led by a girl who had no eyes!

Eleanor Catherine Judd is her name.

When Eleanor was three months old the light of this world was turned off.

As she grew older and realization of her affliction dawned upon her, she began to adjust her life. She had always, even when a child, longed to specialize in research work, microscopic analysis of plant and animal life. It was the one thing she longed to do. And she knew she never could.

same urge that actuated other designers and has brought a pig-skin purse trimmed with narrow straps and gold dipped buckles and a hat band to match.

Royalty Exercises

EUROPEAN crowned heads and other foreign rulers resort to various and sundry means for getting in the royal daily dozen.

When the robes of state shut off the ozone and the privileged head grows weary from too much wear of the crown King Alfonso of Spain picks up his polo set and dashes off on spirited horse along the green.

He is no mean shot with the mallet either and frequently has set the gallery to rocking in high acclaim at his nimble play in pursuit of this sort of pony croquet.

Alfonso began building up his present physique by riding a bicycle when a small boy. At one time he was a frail youngster but constant exercise has made him fit to take part in the sport of kings.

King George of England, that genial and democratic sovereign, as regularly as clockwork exchanges his scepter for a gun and flies his royal self off to the shoot in Scotland on the glorious twelfth of August each year and without fail.

Tennis is the principal recreation of King Gustav of Sweden. Although this monarch is past 65 he still holds place as one of the 20 best European players.

He can serve a ball over the net as neatly as one 40 years his junior and, even after he broke several ribs in an auto smashup a year ago, the near fatality did not daunt his genius with the racket.

LIKES HEIGHTS

King Albert of Belgium finds surcease from the cares of state by beating the chamois goats at their own game in climbing the Alps.

He is a confessed devotee of this form of sport and goes in for aviation.

For 30 years he has made the Alps his play yard, especially that part of it between Mount Blanc and Tyrol. Court functions are dismissed with a wave of the hand when he packs up his climbing toys and goes for a fresh hold on in the shelter of rough mountaineers' cabins.

AIR FAN

Albert fosters aviation as a sport with the ultimate aim of developing its commercial possibilities. His grandfather, Louis Philippe of France, rode trains when they were considered dangerous form of transportation.

In like manner, Albert is using the airplane to give his people practical example in the utility of this newest form of locomotion.

When journeying from Morocco to Paris he accomplished the journey in relays by plane and saved enough time in the last jump from Paris to Brussels to hurry an important cabinet meeting by fully a day.

As in other times the kingly preference for a certain sport dictates the pastime of whole nations.

But these modern rulers don't go in for exercise primarily with any such view.

IT'S a funny thing about the men who run our government.

According to Hoyle, they ought to spend part of their time taking part in conferences, legislative sessions and similar forms of indoor sport.

And when they aren't doing that, they should be keeping fit by playing golf.

That's part of the American credo. Everybody knows it's true—and everybody's wrong!

Of course it's a fact that the boys in Washington do spend a good many hours a day pecking in swivel chairs—sometimes sitting and thinking, and sometimes just sitting.

And, as this pecking process has a tendency to make the red corpuscles belt in place and layers of fatty tissues accumulate around the waistline, many of them sure enough turn to golf as a conditioner.

Some—but by no means all.

There are quite a few—belleirs it or not—who think a bunker is a man who hands out hot air, a tee is what you attend at 4 p. m. in a cutaway coat, a green is a dollar bill, a driver is a trick chauffeur, a maulie is a young blade who flirts with girls to whom he has not been properly introduced, a slice means a piece of cake, and a hook is what they're going to get at the next election.

When you say you are going out to shoot some golf, they think you're going hunting.

CAMERA PROVES CASE

But the boys who make the wheels go 'round have as many methods of keeping fit as Rockefeller has oil cans.

Of this fact we have here photographic proof.

Firstly, there's President Coolidge. You can figure out his system of keeping fit by his nickname of "Silent Cal." Naturally, he works with dumb-bells.

At the moment the picture was snapped, though, he had just hung up his favorite instrument of torture on the rack and picked up a pair of Indian clubs. He thought, so we are told, that the photographer had come to get an interview—and an Indian club is a more effective weapon than the dumb-bell.

President Coolidge believes in keeping in shape. As president he has to, or his onerous duties and multiple responsibilities would break his health.

So "Silent Cal" does his stuff in the gym, and augments these workouts with a brisk morning walk.

GILLETTE PULLS WEIGHTS

Speaker F. A. Gillette of the House of Representatives is another gym "addict."

When the dinner hour blows, instead of sport for the hot groceries, he dodges into the representatives' gymnasium in the capitol and works up an appetite by pulling the weights.

The speaker points out that enough action may be pecked into a short gymnasium workout to last all day. For any kind of a game of golf, on the other hand, you have to knock off quite a collection of hours. During busy legislative seasons this can't be done.

Unlike the president and the speaker, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis prefers to take his exercise in nature's great outdoors, where three strikes are out.

When he feels the need of a change from official duties, he pulls out for the nearest baseball diamond and slaps a few to the outfield.

The secretary, who is built something like Babe Ruth, wields a wicked willow. When he crowns the old apple he just naturally knocks it for a row of Pennsylvanian politicians, but the left field baseball.

John C. Schafer

Clarence J. McLeod

But that's not all. Besides being a monarch of the game, Secretary Davis plays a good game of football. In the fall his principal recreation is to hook up with some team of his own friends and have at it on the gridiron.

SWIMMER, TOO

And in the winter he pulls up and the swimmer tank. He shaves a hairy chest in class.

Chief Justice Taft of the United States Supreme court, has always been fit on the hoof. In his presidential days he favored horseback riding.

Now he uses his own private riding school. Having ridden it to a high degree of perfection, he is now in the most violent form of exercise, the chief pastime being in shape for promoting the payments between his horse and the capitol.

The distance is five miles, and he does it every day.

As winter is full of courtship with the days when Jackie Taft used to take his workouts on board a golfing steed.

"Horseback riding," he is reported to have said to one of his colleagues, "is great stuff—fine for building weight."

"Whose weight?" was the amazed rejoinder. "Yours or the horse's?"

"Taft's."

Congressman John C. Schafer and Clarence J. McLeod lead from the middle west. There's one extra they like, Iceland golf, by hook.

John looks as how he heaves a catfish shoe.

Clarence says that ain't in now-a-days. So just about every sunny day they're down to a secluded horseshoe court near the House of Representatives' office building—and have it out.

So far the game stands even.

Make you think, Norman! Golf doesn't give you a good workout. In that case, try it some time, and see how your arm and shoulder feel the next day!

When it comes to the real human stuff, the dairy hunting boots must be awarded to Senator W. Wharton Pepper. The great open spaces and big clean hills are simply his dish.

The Pennsylvania senator's idea of a pleasant outing is to pack a collection of grub, a shelter tent and a few extra pairs of socks, sling his kit on his back, put on his hiking shoes, and pull out on hoof for all points west.

He looks on a hundred-mile trek—carrying all his own impedimenta and doing his own cooking—just the way the average human being regards a Sunday afternoon stroll in the park. When the call of the wild is broadcast, he's always tuned in.

Congressman John C. Speaks of Ohio has one regret—that he turned out to be a congressman when, with a little more practice, he might have been a big league catcher.

But now he's doing his best to make up for that lost practice. He always keeps a catcher's mitt and a baseball in his desk at the capitol. If anyone whispers, "Let's go out and have a ketch!" he's willing. He works out "holding" some would-be speed king before nearly every House session.

Most politicians say, "Maybe some day I'll be president."

Speaks says, "Maybe some day Walter Johnson'll let me catch some of his shoots."

SLING AXES

These city folks can have all the golf and tennis they want—but none of that for Senators Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota and Magnus Johnson of Minnesota.

Both boast of being honest-to-John dirt farmers, and their idea of a cozy afternoon is to go out and chop wood.

Magnus, in fact, prefers this to any other recreation outside of milking his cow.

Last but not least, let us consider Congressman Vestal of Indiana, Edilton of Illinois, Farnell of Maine and Anderson of Minnesota.

Their field of activity is the aforementioned representatives' gym, where all are in training to become champions of one kind or another.

In off hours they climb into faultless gym attire and gather on the boxing and wrestling mat.

So if anyone tells you that the boys in Washington don't do anything but stage parleys and play golf, you may reasonably conjecture that he is broadcasting on the wrong wavelength.

COOLIDGE KEEPS IN TRIM

"KEEPING the president fit" is one of the greatest problems of the nation, Washington statesmen believe. Unless the president is in good health, he cannot keep on the job. And if he is away from work, dire consequences may result. There are certain things that only the president can do—direction of foreign policies, for example. If he is not at his desk a great part of the machinery of the government may be halted. But Calvin

Coolidge has kept up the pace of the office with very little illness. President Coolidge exercises regularly. He takes a walk before breakfast every morning. It is usually for about half an hour. Every evening, about 5 o'clock, he takes another walk. And when the press of business is not too great, he spends time in the gym. And he eats an apple every night before retiring.

BUTTON, BUTTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, becomes a master crook—preying upon other thieves. Possessing a millionnaire, he goes to the estate of a wealthy retired broker, Kernochan, to steal a large ruby ring belonging to Kernochan's daughter, who is engaged to Ernest Vantine, chief owner of a detective agency.

Having acquired a paste copy of the ruby ring, Ainsley substitutes the imitation for the real ring when the lights go out in the library. But the substitution is discovered, and Vantine prepares to search Ainsley.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Vantine smirked. "I am dealing with a desperate criminal, Ainsley. But Ainsley is dealing with a detective of some reputation. Would a criminal, as daring as this man, leave this house without the object for which he has risked his liberty? Certainly not. Look at his face. The ring is somewhere in this room; he picked it up."

"Oh, and this farce!" I cried. I stretched my hands wide. The girl was seated in a chair. She wore an elaborate coiffure, piled high upon her head, in the depression above her crown, formed by a coil of chestnut hair. Her only attractive possession—I placed the Grand Duke's ring, my hands were quicker than their eyes, and I stepped closer to Vantine, saying wearily: "Search me."

Twenty minutes later I was dressed again. Miss Kernochan had returned. She had sat down again in the chair. I had plucked the ring from her hair and it reposed snugly in my waistcoat pocket once again. Yes, in those days I was an amateur; but I leave it to you who read my memoirs, to decide whether or not I showed, even at an outset of my career, flashes of that genius which since have rendered me incomparable.

"Let's talk it over," suggested Kernochan. He made a very polite "You have us on the hip, Mr. Ainsley. But you must realize that you can never take the ring out of this room. And we are convinced that it is somewhere in this room."

"So am I," I declared. "I think it's about time that you and I searched Vantine."

Vantine laughed, but there was anger in his mirth. "You're very come, Mr. Kernochan," he said.

But the suggestion was too absurd for Kernochan to entertain. I give you my word, had Vantine been search I would have found the ring upon him. But in that event I might have lost the ruby ring.

Let's sit down, have some coffee and talk this over," persisted Kernochan. "I won't use harsh words, Mr. Ainsley. But that ring is here. You brought a paste copy."

I raised my hand. "All of this, Mr. Kernochan, this unbounded libel, will be paid for in court."

"I don't want a lawsuit any more than you want a criminal prosecution," he said. "And we'll hardly have one without the other. But I want the ring. He ordered the butler, who assisted in the second search of me, to bring coffee. We're all excited and under a strain, and a cup of coffee will help us to look at the matter sensibly."

The butler left, I sat down. He argued, pleaded and threatened. I was adamant. I told him that I had been insulted, that if my departure were much longer impeded, I would have satisfaction in the courts. The butler entered, bringing the coffee. I refused to partake, and started boldly for the door. Vantine leaped to his feet.

"You can't go," he cried. "I turned and advanced to the table on which were set the cups of coffee. I guessed, I thought, his intention."

"I suppose," I said, "that you are going to search me again."

I really thought that he was. Mind you, the man was beside himself in wrathful humiliation. Only the fear that I might after all be what I claimed to be, and the fear of ridicule which I had promised, restrained him. But I did not know that he would be restrained, and so I slipped the ring into a cup of coffee, not, however, into the cup that had been set at the vacant place at the table which was meant for me. I slipped it into Vantine's.

He colored furiously. He felt as ridiculous as he was. "No, I'm not going to search you," he almost roared.

I bowed to him. "In that case," I said, "I shall drink Mr. Kernochan's coffee."

Something within me gave warning, instead of picking up Vantine's cup, I chose the one meant for me. And before I could put it to my lips Vantine's fingers gripped my wrist.

"So that's where you hid it!" he cried.

"Don't be absurd, Ernest," said Miss Kernochan indignantly. "The coffee was just brought in."

But Vantine's must have seen something triumphant in my eyes, for he poured the coffee out, part of it, into the saucer, and then groped in the liquid remaining in the cup. Then, forgetful of the presence of his fiancée, he cursed angrily.

"If all detectives are as stupid as you, Vantine," I told him, "I wonder that more people don't go in for theft." I reached for his cup. "I don't propose to be denied my drink because you are a jackass," I remarked. With that I put his cup to my lips; the ruby ring passed into my mouth; I put the cup down, and wiped my mouth with a napkin. A second later the ruby ring had once again returned to my waistcoat pocket. I nodded coldly to Kernochan and his daughter.

"Now, then," I said to Vantine, "if you will kindly unlock the door, I will go upstairs, get my things and leave."

The sweet-faced Mr. Kernochan forbore, but he added to Vantine:

Vantine and the ex-policemen who make up the staff of his agency. But I was not safe from something else.

Once again I tell you that at this time I was an amateur, guided with sentiment—aye, sentimentality. For I could not fail but think of the strange woman in Boston. The Grand Duke's ring should have been hers. Some how I felt that I had robbed her, not the grossly rich Benjamin Kernochan. And so—I turned the ruby into cash, engaged a discreet lawyer, and Mrs. Henry Adams learned that certain stock which she did not know belonged to her husband was hers. She lives, I believe, in comparatively luxury upon a farm in Massachusetts. She should live well; the income from one hundred and fifty thousand dollars—the price paid me for the Grand Duke's ruby by a dealer in stolen stones—is ample for a widowed lady of simple tastes.

Yes, I was an amateur. Thank God, I have not yet forgotten that I was also a gentleman.

The adventure of the Grand Duke's ruby had cost me money, instead of showing me profit. Yet if by that adventure I was lighter in my pocket, I was also light in heart, thinking of Mrs. Adams as I sailed the following week for Europe.

THE TANGLE

An Intimate Story of Immature Emotions Revealed in Private Letters

LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVINE HAMILTON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT MY DEAR DAUGHTER:

I'm very much disappointed at not being able to be with you on your anniversary. But, Leslie dear, I am very much worried over your marriage. He's not very well, and since he arrived home his business career, because of his long absence, have doubled and been most troublesome. He misses Mrs. Atherton very much. Of course the whole house is upset with preparations for Alice's wedding. I wonder if you remember that at the time of your marriage she said she was not going to have a big wedding—that she hated them. Now she seems to be obsessed with only one idea—that her wedding is to be a much larger, much grander, and much more expensive society event than yours.

Leslie dear, I am very much concerned over Alice's marriage. She seems to be so different since she returned home. She is irritable and nagging, and she leads poor Karl such a life that your father said to me the other day that he wouldn't blame him if he broke the engagement.

Her latest notion is that she does not want to live in America after she is married. She particularly detests Pittsburgh and you know how devoted Karl is to his old home. I don't think he was ever very happy in England. He just stayed over there because he had an idea that Alice needed him.

I suggested that Karl and she go to your anniversary party, and she was quite impatient at the suggestion. Said she didn't understand why she had to make her appearance at your party just because she happened to be your sister—said in a very nasty way that Karl could go if he wanted to.

Leslie, I think Alice is making a great mistake because not only your father and I but nearly every one in Pittsburgh where you girls grew up knew that Karl was very much in love with you before your marriage. Now that he has transferred that affection ship ought to be quite satisfied to let bygones be bygones. Instead she is always making Karl uncomfortable. If she doesn't look out she will succeed in turning his from your father as a little present to you on your anniversary. Do with it what you please. It is the thing that will give you the greatest pleasure. It is sent with all the love of YOUR MOTHER AND FATHER.

P. S.—Your father asked me to write this letter for him as well as myself but I am sure he did not intend me to be so very confidential.

ATTRACTIVE BILLS CONSTITUTE WEEK'S MOVIE OFFERINGS

DRAMA AND MYSTERIES SHOW HERE

"The Bedroom Window" At Quilna—Sigma Features Constance Talmadge

Walter Hiers at Lyric for Two Days—Majestic Has "The Common Law"

BY GERTRUDE GILLHAM

A mystery-melodrama, two comedy dramas and a sociological problem play open the week's motion picture program at the various theatres today.

"The Bedroom Window," which starts a four-day run at the Quilna this afternoon, is heralded as one of the most unusual mystery pictures of the season in that the hero and villain are unknown until the final reel of the film. May McAvoy, Malcolm MacGregor, Ricardo Cortez and George Fawcett are the featured players.

Constance Talmadge will be seen in her latest comedy, "The Gold Fish," for the first half of the week at the Sigma. The film, which was adapted from the Broadway stage success is said to contain comedy of the liveliest description ideally suited to the star's unusual talent. Jack Mulhall is Constance's leading man and other prominent players are Zazu Pitta, Edward Connelly and William Conklin.

Another comedy will be seen at the Lyric this week until Tuesday. It is Al Christie's first feature production, "Hold Your Breath," and has been done in the same tempo as the short Christie comedies. The cast is headed by Dorothy Devore and Walter Hiers. The Majestic will show "The Common Law," a screen version of Robert W. Chambers' famous novel for the first three days of the week. Corrine Griffith, Elliott Dexter and Conway Tearie have the principal roles.

The week-end will also offer a list of pretentious productions. Starting Thursday the Quilna will flash a picturization of Robert W. Service's well-known poem, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew." Barbara La Marr, Lew Cody, Mae Busch and Percy Marmont make up the principal players.

The Sigma's week-end bill will be "East Side West Side" from the play of the same name, co-starring Kenneth Harlan and Eileen Percy.

Paramount's "The Impossible Mrs. Bellew" which was censored during its first showing here some time ago, will be the Lyric's attraction for three days beginning Wednesday. Gloria Swanson has the leading role and is supported by Conrad Nagel, Robert Cain and Frank Elliott. It will be followed on Saturday by "The Storm Daughter" with Priscilla Dean.

Karl Williams stars in "Jealous Husbands" coming to the Majestic Wednesday and Thursday. This will be replaced by "The Wanters" which will remain for two days.

HIERS' COMEDY

"Hold Your Breath" Playing at Lyric

"Hold Your Breath," the first of the Al Christie feature productions, which opened Saturday at the Lyric, is replete with thrilling action, spaced with many laughs.

Those who have seen Christie's short farces and comedies in the past know what to expect, since in this full-length production the Christie organization has followed the style which it pursued in its two reel films, that is, telling a logical story and brightening it up with funny situations.

The story deals with a girl who endeavors to hold down her brother's newspaper job while he is ill, and does so, although she aroused the whole town and almost breaks her neck before she succeeds.

The cast is comprised of a grand array of well known players. Dorothy Devore, the irrepressible little star of a multitude of Christie comedies, is the girl. Walter Hiers plays her well meaning fiance and Tully Marshall is seen as the eccentric collector. Jimmie Adams, Jimmie Harrison and Priscilla Bonner head the supporting cast.

Gloria Swanson has one of the most dramatic roles of her career in "The Impossible Mrs. Bellew" which comes to the Lyric Wednesday for a three day engagement. She plays the part of a loving wife tricked into a divorce by a jealous husband and torn from her little boy who was dearer than life to her. Grief-stricken, she plunges into a mad whirl of gaiety only to be rescued by a true love and borne back to happiness.

The star is supported by an excellent company of well known Paramount players. Conrad Nagel plays the male lead with Robert Cain doing one of his polished "heavies." Other roles are handled by Frank Elliott, Richard Wayne, Gertrude Astor, Jung Elvidge and Helen Dunbar.

Priscilla Dean comes to the Lyric Saturday in "The Storm Daughter," a tale of the sea in the day of the sailing ship. The adventurous life led aboard ship in those days is declared to be depicted in a manner to vividly portray the actualities of daily struggle against the elements, the men against each other, the tradition.

Tom Sarsich, noted for scores of virile western portrayals, plays opposite Priscilla Dean.

The Lyric's attraction until Wednesday.

May McAvoy and Malcolm MacGregor in William de Mille's Paramount Picture "The Bedroom Window"

Appearing for the first half of the week at the Quilna.

QUILNA BILLS

Two Paramount Pictures Booked for Week

Two of the latest productions of Paramount and Metro share the Quilna screen this week and each of them has met with the strongest kind of approval wherever so far shown.

"The Bedroom Window," which opens a four-day engagement this afternoon is by the same author as the popular "Grumpy" and produced under the same direction, that of William de Mille. It is a mystery comedy drama of the latest approved pattern—the kind where the audience is kept in the dark as to the solution of a mystery until the final reel. Thus "The Bedroom Window" will offer you an opportunity to do a little detective work of your own.

In point of cast "The Bedroom Window" has about everything you might wish for. The principal roles are enacted by such popular players as May McAvoy, Malcolm MacGregor, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Edson, George Fawcett and Ethel Wales. In their support are Charles Ogle, Guy Oliver, Lillian Leighton and other capable members of the Paramount organization. This program will also have the Quilna News and the Jolly Asop Fables.

On Thursday for three days only, comes the Metro production of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," which recently created a veritable sensation at the Capitol Theatre, New York. As you are doubtless aware, the picture is based upon the well known poem of Robert W. Service, taken from "The Spell of the Yukon." It was directed by Clarence Badger, who has to his credit such fine pictures as "Quincy Adams Sawyer" and "Potash and Perlmutter."

Metro's determination to make this picture a masterpiece has resulted in the engagement of a cast that is sure to meet with approval. Barbara La Marr, Lew Cody and Percy Marmont were selected to play the famous roles of the Lady Known as Lou, Dangerous Dan McGrew and The Stranger. These players are supplemented by a cast that includes Mae Busch, George Siegmann, Max Asher and Philippe de Lacy.

"COMMON LAW"

"The Common Law," a screen version of the famous Robert W. Chambers novel, will be shown at the Majestic theatre for the first three days of the current week. On Wednesday comes "Jealous Husbands" with Earle Williams. For a two day run, it will be accompanied by an episode of "Fighting Blood." "The Wanters" with an all-star cast concludes the week's program.

Next to the story value perhaps the most outstanding feature of "The Common Law" is its cast which co-stars Corrine Griffith, Conway Tearie and Elliott Dexter, and carries in their support such celebrated players as Doris May, Hobart Bosworth, Miss Dupont, Bryant Washburn and Phyllis Haver.

The story of "The Common Law" is so well known that it is hardly necessary to more than briefly sketch it. It has to do with the life of an innocent young girl, thrown quite by chance into the society of artists, sculptors, and the Bohemian atmosphere which surrounds this class of people. She consents to pose and achieves great success as a model. Great love comes to her and is returned by the artist who first saw her possibilities, but their marriage is bitterly opposed by the artist's family. She finally tries to live with her lover as his common law wife, and such a union is almost effected. A dramatic conclusion is realistically handled.

a modern flapper role in her latest comedy success, a play taken from the famous stage hit in which Marjorie Rambeau starred. She has been surrounded by an excellent supporting cast headed by Jack Mulhall, Frank Elliott, Zazu Pitta, Edward Connelly and William Conklin. (Continued on Page Twenty-One)
